FOR SLENDER ANKLES

Along with everything else, ankles must have that slender look this fall and one manufacturer has taken cognizance of the fact by designing a new line of hosiery with tapered heels ending in a point. This new heel really is astonishingly flattering to the ankles.

THE RISE AND FALL OF BABYLON

1—An Ancient City
We think of Rome as an old city, and it is, indeed—its history stretches back 2,500 years. It was captured and burned more than once in ancient times, but each time it took on new life.

Old as Rome is today, it does not have the age which Babylon reached. From its start to its finish, Babylon lived 3,000 years or more. At last it died, leaving only a memory. In a later story, we shall see how a city may "die."

For 2,000 years Babylon was a heap of ruins, or we might better say, several heaps of ruins. Then came the time when scientists dug into the ruins. Day after day, and month after month, they labored. Slowly but surely, they drew out objects of interest.

Among the ruins were statues of gods and goddesses, and images of them which had been made with clay. More important, they found clay slabs bearing the strange writing of people who lived in Babylon during the thousands of years of its history.

The writing told about kings and queens, about religion and everyday customs. There were notes on the laws which used to rule the people of Babylon, and strange laws some of them were! Here are a few examples of the laws of ancient Babylon:

"If a builder puts up a house for a man, and does not make it strong, and if it falls down and kills the owner, the builder shall be put to death. If it kills the son of the owner, the builder's son shall be put to death."

"If a woman who is a priestess goes to a wineshop to drink, she shall be burned."

"If a man breaks one of the bones of another man, they shall break one of his bones."

Other laws of Babylon followed the "eye for an eye, and tooth for a tooth" idea. Today we think our laws are made with a better spirit. If a man "breaks one of the bones of another man," we try to learn whether it was done by accident. If it has been done on purpose, the guilty person may be put in jail or prison.

The name "Babylon" means "Gate of the Gods." It was not used at the time the city was founded. One of the early names meant "City of Sargon of Akkad."

famed as one of the early homes of the art of writing.
