LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 2 -(UP)-I hit the Henry Armstrong-Ceferino Garcia fight for the middleweight championship of the world right on the nose, i said well in advance that it would end in a 10-round draw. It did.

But I am not bragging, even th I am a man who does not mak he correct selection very ofter A man might just as well brag over discovering a new and deadly influenza germ, or a termit who would live only in woode logs, or a chicken with all wing and neck. Because this was no draw.

Armstrong won it easily. easily, in fact, that even the gate crashers, who helped to swell the small crowd of this great production, must have known from their perches just this side of Fresno that there could be no honest doubt of the decision.

I am not a man who puts him-If up as a ring expert, but neither do I sell pencils on the corner, tin-cup equipped. In short, I am not blind and from where sat with other members of the press in the front row, Armstrong won six rounds, lost two and got Armstrong was continually the sure sure of the sure of is something he will reveal probably only in his memoirs. How un earth he could see this as an even fight is beyond even my comprehension. Apparently he didn't make up his mind until he was over his third wheat cake at the Brown derby, because I will swear to you that no official announcement, either by Blake or anyone else, ever was made as to the decision.

This correspondent, who dislikes to speak to strangers, had to tap a man on the shoulder to find out what the Blake verdict was, Fortunately, the man who I touched was Jerry Giesler, criminal lawyer, and chairman of the California boxing association. Giesler whispered to me, sotto voice, that Blake had decided on a draw.

She was walking in Ladyweit Recreation Ground, when she saw four mer lying on the ground. She noticed that each of them was wearing one or more articles of army clothing, such as socks and boots.
