Most Stars Poor Judges Of Picture Roles

Sulking Players Result In Production Of Many Academy Films

Clark Gable made a one-man stand against being cast as Rhett casts, over the WEAF Sunday, at Butler in "Gone With the Wind"; 8 p. m. and was being praised by everyone who had seen the rushes. Bette Davis hated the chore. It was a dissatisfied cast all around; Errol Flynn and Donald Crisp didn't like their roles, either.

"WUTHERING HEIGHTS" WENT BEGGING

William Wyler wanted to direct were interested, and Warner Broth- Medford, Mass. ers were about to write a check when Goldwyn, deciding that the snatched it with a bigger offer.

When Wyler was ready to film "Wuthering Heights." he said that Merle Oberon wouldn't do at all for the lead opposite Laurence Olivier. But she was the only actress under contract to Goldwyn, who wouldn't hire anyone cise. So she went into it and was sensational, and the picture itself rated high every "10 best" list for 1939.

Lewis Milestone and Gene Sothat Milestone was suing Hal is music director of the series. Roach for $80,000 on an unfinished directorial contract. Roach had wanted to settle for $25,000, Milestone had refused, and there the situation stood when Roach thought of a deal to smooth out everything: If Milestone was so confident that "Mice and Men" would make a good picture, he ought to be willing to let the $80,~ 000 go into production expenses and gamble on a share of the receipts for his profit. The director agreed, and that's how a great picture happened to be made.

About 48 hours later she sent a grudging acceptance if the part were still open. It was, and it restored her to popular stardom.

Spencer Tracy almost always kicks about his roles. Said he couldn't possibly do "Edison the Man," which requires a lot of makeup in the latter sequences. He didn't want to be the priest in "San Francisco," which put him on the movie map, nor the Portuguese fisherman in "Captain's Courageous," which won him an Academy Award.

Others forced into prize-winning parts were Gable and Claudette ("It Happened One Night") and Bette Davis ("Dangerous"). Cary Grant said he'd give $10,000 to get out of "The Awful Truth" after he read the script. It turned out to be the funniest film of the year and Grant's best picture.

PSTARTING MONDAY "BACK TO NATURE REVUE" PRATURING THE "MODERN RAWS"

Lamarr, Tracy Co-Starring At The Ohio

It was a stroke of genius to costar Spencer Tracy, generally admitted the screen's greatest actor, and Hedy Lamarr, whom the world admits to be the most glamorous newcomer in a decade Teaming of these two leaves nothing to be desired by the fans and hence it is a simple job to highly recommend "I Take This Woman. which opened Saturday at the Ohio theatre,

The picture tells the story of a woman's greatest romance and regeneration, and marks the most romantic characterization ever assigned to Tracy, as well as the glamour girl's most dramatic role and her first with a modern American setting. Miss Lamarr is compelling in her emotional scenes and Tracy's performance is one of his most powerful characterizations.

The story deals with a social butterfly who, when a romance with a married man crashes, finds sanctuary by the side of an earnest physician working in a tenement clinic. When the physician risks his career to provide her pleasures in night club society, a dramatic denouement solves their problems.

Expertly abetting the two stars by playing one of her typical wisecracking comedy roles is Verree Teasdale. Kent Taylor is attractive as "the other man." The whole cast is excellent, with special applause going to Laraine Day, Mona Barrie, Jack Carson, Paul Cavanaugh, Louis Calhern. Frances Drake, Marjorie Main, George E. Stone, Willie Best, Don Castle, Dalies Frantz and Reed Hadley
