NIGHT LIFE FOOTNOTES

STONE'S GRILL-You really haven't been anyplace in the after-dark circuit unless you brace up to Harry Minton's bar of a Saturday night-or any other eve. Very interesting grog shop. LOST CREEK-Fine good expertly served. Accent on the steaks, of course.

DIXIE NITE CLUE-A nighterie of definitely top flight character. The beer's potent and the clients full of verve. BARR RAINBOW BOOM-Recently, due to typo error, the chlef herder of funsters at the Rainbow room was referred to as "meanie host" Ortha Barr, Naturally this jovial prince of tavern proprietors should have been described as "mein host," with a Dutch twang, Sorry.

FASTLE FARM-We still think that the view of women-folk riding those harmless appearing hobby horses is one of the best we've had in the stereoptican of late. Looks better thru four roses colored glasses, also,

ALPINE VILLAGE-It's amazing how so many persons can foregather in a relatively small dance floor and malntain equilibrium and sense of humor. Yet it's done here, so come out and give a look-see.

DICK'S PLACE-If you yearn for hilligan music such as "They Cut Down the Old Pine Tree" or "Don't Go Down in the Mines Today. Father," this is the casis in which to hear same done dandy.

GRASTONE-A refined eating spot of pronounced home-like surroundings. In addition to the splendid atmosphere, the best of viands are obtainable. Party arrangements are executed with finesse and dispatch.

BLINKING OWL - An old standby that increases in customer appeal as the seasons change, MILANO CAFE-This one is decidedly different. Whether it be a discourse on European politics by that astute mixologist, Frank, or a fifty thousand kllowat argument between the chefs, customers are always assured of entertainment.
