Answering Your Questions About CONSCRIPTION

(By MILTON BRONNER)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 15—Employers have a special interest in one section of the selective service draft act which provides that conscripted men shall, upon the end of this year's service in the army, receive back from employers their old job or its equivalent. The exact wording is: "such employers shall restore such persons to such positions or to a position of like seniority, status and pay, unless the employer's circumstances have so changed as to make it impossible or unreasonable to do so."

The law further says that if an employer fails to comply with this provision, the returned draftee can apply to the U. S. district attorney, who, without fee or charge, shall represent him to see that the law is obeyed.

WAIVE RIGHTS TO GET JOBS

Several men who are subject to the draft have written in to this bureau that they recently have been offered jobs by employers, provided they sign a waiver of their rights under this bill. Inquiry with the legal department with the selective service draft bureau reveals that this practice is highly illegal.

In the first place, no man can sign a waiver, giving away rights guaranteed to him under a federal law. In the second place, the employer who exacts such a waiver, or seeks such a waiver, is putting himself into a very serious position.

Section XI of the regulations on organization and administration, signed by President Roosevelt, says: "Any person charged as herein provided with the duty of carrying out any of the provisions of this act or the rules or regulations made or directions given thereunder, who shall knowingly fail or neglect to perform such duty . . . shall upon conviction in the district court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years or a fine of not more than $10,000, or both such fine and imprisonment."

Army officials and the courts would probably look upon this as a species of duress. It is an attempt to make a man give up his rights under the law. It holds a club over him if he wants a job.

UNPatriotic EMPLOYERS

It has come to the attention of U. S. army officials that a great many employers are doing some other things upon which the army frowns, particularly in refusing to give employment to men of draft age. Some employers are dismissing men who are of draft age.

This points to one of the loopholes in the Selective Service act. There is no section of the act which penalizes this, but the army deems such action highly unpatriotic.

Chances are that if these things become wholesale, public pressure will induce Congress to consider a new bill, which will penalize such action.

KENTON DENTIST HEADS HARDIN-CO DRAFT BOARD

(Lima News Bureau) KENTON, Oct. 15—Plans for the registration and supervision of men between the ages of 21 and 36 went forward here today with the announcement that Dr. Frank Burger, retired Kenton dentist, has been named chairman of the Hardin-co draft board, and Carl J. Broscoe of Kenton, creamery operator and veteran of the World war, secretary.

At least three members of the local board, Burger said, will go to Columbus on Wednesday where instructions as to procedure will be given out. An office site will be picked after that date, he explained, and further business will be taken up.

It is expected that more than 4,000 young men will register in Hardin-co on Wednesday when all precinct voting places will be open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. for registration of conscripts.

Akim Tamiroff Starred In Sigma Drama Of Real Life

"Way Of All Flesh" Features Popular Actor In Wednesday Film; Also Showing Is Romantic Comedy, "Cross Country Romance"

In one of the most powerful and dramatic roles of his career, Akim Tamiroff is featured with Gladys George and William Henry in the film, "The Way of All Flesh," commencing Wednesday at the Sigma theatre. The co-feature will be "Cross Country Romance" with Gene Raymond and Wendie Barrie in the starring roles. Showing for the final times Tuesday is "Kit Carson."

With rollicking entertainment as its keynote, "Young People," starring Shirley Temple, Jack Onie and Charlotte Greenwood, is at the Quilna theatre with the story of two former vaudevillians and their adopted daughter who attempt to live in a small town. The co-feature, "The Great Profile" stars John Barrymore and Mary Beth Hughes.

Mickey Rooney, surrounded by a glittering array of musical talent, is starred in "Strike Up the Band," at the Ohio theatre. Among the stars of the film are Judy Garland, June Preisser, Paul Whitman and orchestra, and William Tracy, with the gay, witty musical introducing several new songs and travesties on the old-fashioned tunes.

The story of an alluringly feminine woman, desirable to men, is told in the Lyric film, "I Was an Adventuress," with Zorina, Richard Greene, Erich von Stroheim and Peter Lorre. Romance and intrigue are contained in the sparkling, smart, exciting picture. Also showing is "Murder Man."

A stellar collection of dramatic names is offered in the cast of the State film, "Our Town," the frankly human story of life and love in a small town. In the production are Martha Scott, William Holden, Fay Bainter, Thomas Mitchell, Beulah Bondi, Guy Kibbe, Stuart Erwin and Frank Craven. The co-feature, "They Drive By Night," stars Ann Sheridan and George Raft.

OHIO

Mirth and melody reign at the Ohio theatre where Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland and a group of clever youngsters, many of them seen with the youthful stars in "Babes in Arms," are regaling audiences with harmonies and comedicalities.

Mickey and Judy organize a high school band in the story and that's when things begin to happen. Paul Whitman has announced a radio contest for high school bands. They set out to raise funds for the trip to Chicago. They stage a travesty on old-time melodrama, with the buzz saw, heroine tied to the railroad tracks, and such ancient ditties as "Heaven Will Protect a Working Girl."

When Paul Whitman appears in their town they borrow his orchestra's instruments during an intermission and give him an audition he never expected. They raise money for the trip, then one of the youngsters becomes ill and must be flown to a great surgeon. They sacrifice the money for the trip to save him but fate in the person of the town millionaire provides the train fare and they win the prize in a grand musical climax embellished by their comical specialties.

Mickey masters the drums and is irresistibly funny. He also does some appealing "straight" drama with Ann Shoemaker, playing his mother. Judy sings the catchy "Our Love Affair" and "Nobody," and burlesques such old-time numbers as "The Curse of an Aching Heart" fetchingly. She rises to comedy heights in the melodrama number. June Preisser, amazing ter as the swing-minded school janitor.

The broadcast climax featuring Gershwin's "Strike Up the Band" and a musical medley including Mickey's strenuous drum solo, brings the mirth to a close in a blaze of harmony. Busby Berkeley's deft direction of "Strike Up the Band."

SIGMA

Opening at the Sigma theatre on Wednesday is the production, "The Way of All Flesh," in which are featured Akim Tamiroff, Gladys George, William Henry and Mariel Angelus. In the opening scenes the picture shows the happy home life of Paul Kriza—played by Tamiroff—a small town bank cashier. He is sent to New York to deliver $100,000 worth of bank securities to a client arriving from abroad. His mission known, he becomes the prey of a band of crooks who, thru the complicity of a beautiful adventuress, and member of the gang, Mary Brown—played by Mariel Angelus—lure him into a dive, drug and rob him.

When the terribly mangled body of a man is found on a railroad track with Kriza's watch and wallet beside it, he is believed to be dead, murdered while trying to save the bank's securities. Realizing that for him to return alive means shame and disgrace for his wife and children, he condemns himself to become a homeless broken man, shunning all who might recognize him. How he finds eventual regeneration and peace is disclosed in a touching and unusual finale.

How a beautiful runaway heiress sets out to win the love of a penniless doctor and keep him from emigrating for China, is woven into a frolicsome pattern for the new romantic comedy, "Cross Country Romance," starring Gene Raymond and Wendie Barrie and also showing at the Sigma.

THE RECORD Facts That Concern You

WOULD YOU CUT DOWN THE APPLE TREE? You'll probably find a few bad apples in a bushel of good ones. That's the way it is with beer retailing in America. There are hundreds of thousands of wholesome, law-abiding beer retail establishments that sell good beer—the refreshing, appetizing beverage of moderation. At the same time, there is a handful of undesirable, anti-social taverns. Unfortunately, these few outlaw establishments bring discredit to the entire beer industry.

To protect your right to drink good beer, the Brewing Industry wants such anti-social retailers eliminated entirely. It has instituted a "clean-up or close-up" program—now in effect in some states and being extended.

We'd like you to know about this socially important program. May we tell you about it in an interesting free booklet? Write: United Brewers Industrial Foundation, 19 East 40th Street, New York, N. Y.
