War Turns People to Music, Maestro Says

NEW ORLEANS (U.P.)—After war comes music. That is the opinion of Cle Windingstad, director of the New Orleans symphony orchestra. Windingstad believes that world conditions are causing people more than ever to turn to fine music for relaxation. "While I was up north," he said, "I was impressed with this fact. Doubtless they find in such music a surcease from the horrors that we are beset with, receive renewed faith in the essential goodness of humanity." Playing for people who "moved about as silently as ghosts or lay flat on their backs looking up at the stars," Windingstad said, was one of the most wonderful experiences he ever had. Windingstad returned here from

PRISONER FIRES JAIL

DECATUR, Ind. (U.P.)—An attempted prison-break at the Adams county jail here by setting fire to the building failed when the smoke aroused the sheriff and members of his family. The entire population of the prison was in on the plan. He was Hiram McCollum, only inmate.

LUTEFISK SUPPER PLANNED
