1:30—Dream Has Come True—WMAQ The story goes back two years ago. One night Irving Eppy, an elderly Detroit stockbroker who lived at the same hotel as Greenhived at the same hotel as Green-berg, said to Hank, "how'd you like to have a raise in salary?" "Why, sure I'd like one, who wouldn't?" Greenberg replied. "Well, if you'll agree to play the outfield you can get it," Eppy told him.

"I thought he was kidding and you are going into the outfield next season.' I knew Eppy was friendly with Jack Zeller, general manager of the Tigers, and I had seen him sitting around the lobby

together but I still considered the whole thing just a screwy idea of a rabid fan," Then in January Zeller called Greenberg on the long distance phone and asked him to come out to Detroit at the club's expense. Hank agreed and presumed the trip was for the purpose of discussing his 1940 salary. "You'll have to take a $10,-000 cut in salary," he said. Greenberg almost swooned. "You're kidding," laughed Hank.

"I'm not kidding either," Zeller said. "The only way you can ret that money back is to play the outfield."

"Hey, what's going on here," Hank exploded. "I haven't been cut any $19,240. "I'll go see Mr. Briggs." (Walter O. Briggs, Detroit owner).

"Mr. Briggs we'a't see you," Zeller replied. 'I'm handling the case and you have your choice of playing the outfield at your 1939 salary or taking a $10,000 cut."

DANCE TONIGHT

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

IT CAN BE A LIABILITY IN MANY cases a declarer likes to have a singleton of some suit in his own hand or the dummy, as it is often an asset to one extent or another. There are times, however, when it can be a liability. One of the chief among these is the case of a No Trump declarer who possesses only a singleton of the dummy's suit, or the dummy has only a singleton of his suit. One more card would afford an extra chance to try a finesse, and also would aid the probability of the suit establishing, since it would cut down by one the number of cards held by the declarer.

-the value of having a couple of cards of your partner's suit when you get into a game at No Trumps. There are many fine players who would not think of forcing with 2-No Trumps on South's hand, but would prefer to respond to the heart call with one of the other suits, depending upon which method the pair was using. They probably would wind up in a game at No Trumps anyway, but the effort to avoid trouble would West led the club 3 to the Q and K. Followed then the heart K. spade Q, heart A and the heart J, in an effort to set up some heart tricks. When East showed out. South knew the jig was up. West won that trick with the Q and shifted to the diamond 9 to the A. East returned his club 7 to the J.

and the contract was set then by the club A and heart 10. If South had held the heart 2 instead of West, and one less diamond, he could have taken a winning finesse in the dummy's suit and also could have established a low card trick in it, to make his contract.
