Wisconsin in 1940 increased its forest lands by an aggregate of 20,000 acres by planting 38,106,300 new forest trees, mostly varieties of pine, bringing the total of non-federal public forests in the state to more than 2,079,000 acres. The 1940 plant was an increase of 8,- Wisconsin's five state forest nurseries shows 67 million young trees on hand, with the nurseries now capable of supplying 50 million new trees annually to provide an aggre-gate yearly planting of 25,000 acres. Of the 1940 plant, in round numbers 25 million trees were allotted for county forest rehabilitation, three million for state forests and wildwood parks, three and a half million for farms. Remainder of the trees were planted along highways for roadside beautification and as living snow fences, as farm shelterbelts, and were sold at modest price for forest develop-

Destiny to Dog House Each Week

Maybe this sounds like a mixed metaphor, but Barbara Murphy ranges from destiny to the dog house every week. Meaning, of course, that she is featured on "Wings of Destiny," heard over NBC Friday at 9 p. m., and on "Uncle Walter's Dog House" Tuesday at 9:30 p. m.

The group heard Supt. B. A. Kennedy, Prairie du Chien, urge them to be more alert in their efforts to develop real citizenship among pupils. He advised the teachers to aid their pupils in straightening out the real issues in the confused world today.

Observation classes were taught during the morning session by Anieta Stephens, Dodgeville; Anne Schaaf, Mineral Point; Dorothy Sliter, Ray Hollow; Naomi Severson, Dover, and Rosaline Filardo, South Survey.

A. R. Page presided at a roundtable discussion on guidance, and Joseph Rorhr explained the use of museum and visual aids for classroom teaching.

S. C. Anderson, Arena, was elected association president at the business meeting; Kenneth Holt Hollandale, vice-president, and
