HOLLYWOOD—Technical service laboratories, A. Paul, Jr. president, today had electrified Charlie McCarthy's lower jaw with equipment identical to that controlling the locks in the Pana-

We know about this because we had lunch at R-K-O with Edgar Bergen and Technician Paul. They discussed the fine points of the synchronous motors which will control the dummy's lips in the movie, "Look Who's Talking." When Bergen decided he needremote control for Charlie, he called in Paul, who studied the Panama Canal controls as well as the gasoline supply apparatus on the new B-19 bombers. These devices consist of two electric motors, hitched together by wire and turning at exactly the same speed. Say the man at the Panama canal control tower turns his motor over a half turn. The other motor at the locks nudges open the gate. Say Bergen turns his motor a half turn. Charlie's lips open in a

Messrs. Bergen and McCarthy are at work now under di-rector Allan Dawn, with Lucille Ball, Fibber McGee and Molly, Dorothy Lovett, Lee Bonnel, and Jane Patten rounding out the cast. Paul is on hand to see that Charlie doesn't blow a fuse. Today all hands were in full evening dress in Bergen's magnificent modernistic penthouse, overlooking the New York skyline. The blue-eyed Miss Ball was off a pair of hand-knitted socks, known. for benefit of what she called a

"The Authority on Authorities" in all four seats. When South saw the dummy, he counted two losers in diamonds and one in hearts, with no play for his contract except a squeeze. But, with West having hearts and East diamonds. as told by the bidding, he saw that he could squeeze them, with neither able to protect spades.

First he let the lead of the diamond 9 to East's J hold, to break communication between their hands, then took the second dismond, leaving him the 10 which only East could beat. After taking two trump rounds, he fixed hearts so only West could guard them, by leading toward the Q and playing it. West, of course, took this and having no diamond to return could not break up the squeeze. His offer was the spade Q to the A. South then played the heart K. and the elements of his squeeze were prepared. He ran the rest of his clubs. When the final one was led. West could not afford to throw off the heart 10, which stood guard over dummy's 6, so had to blank the spade J. The heart 6, having served its pur-pose, was now shed, and the squeeze was on East. He could not at the same time hold his diamond Q to beat the 10, and his two spades, so he conceded the last spades, ~ two tricks,

Then the Messrs Bergen, Paul, and McCarthy arrived. They took us to lunch, as reported above. Bergen had fruit salad. Paul had lamb chops. McCarthy stayed in his case, presumably rubbing his electrified law.
