Prepare for War Now, Newscaster Tells Lions

It is better for America to prepare for war now, when she still has some allies standing, than it would be for her to try to get ready later, when all her national friends lay defeated, Robert Burlingame, Des Moines, Ia., newscaster, suggested before 300 Lions in the closing stag luncheon of their three-day convention at Hotel Loraine Tuesday.

Burlingame painted a tortuous trail ahead for America and Americans. He spoke on "The World of Today," in which he sees:

ONE: Stalin about to enter the war with Hitler.

TWO. The British success in Syria and Libya just "a Hitler trick," which later will turn into more disaster for the English.

THREE. The Syrian campaign "as much politics as anything else" for Britain's prime minister, Winston Churchill.

FOUR. A Fascist government in England if Churchill is defeated and a resulting compromise peace with the Axis.

FIVE. A defeated British turning on an America she will be told helped her "too little and too late."

Burlingame minced no words in describing Hitler as "the mad genius now in charge of Europe."

Likewise, he pulled no punches in listing the nearness of Axis striking points, which might be utilized in a war between an "America bounded on each side by dictators unfriendly to our system of free enterprise.

"We are to all intents and purposes in the war now," he declared. "War is senseless and foolish, but sometimes events allow no alternative.

"WE ARE IN SUCH TIMES NOW."

Acording to the speaker, "the most we can hope for is that after the carnage, groups like Lions, dedicated to charity and understanding among all people, will be able to build a world where the war drums beat no longer."

Until then, he said, there will be sacrifices, although not the danger of invasion so much, or the danger of economic strangulation, either.

"The threat is in the hearts of the people, and as surely as we are robbed of the faith we have in the democratic way, America is doomed to go down to great depths and defeat that other great nations of the world have seen."

Those "who attempt to be falsely optimistic do us no service," Burlingame charged. He named no one in this category.

"The sooner we decide we should shoulder our burdens—which cannot be avoided, anyway—the happier and stronger we'll be," he asserted. "When as a nation we are confronted with these problems, I have no fear of the verdict."

Until then, however, the radio broadcaster saw "grave danger of the British empire and America losing control of the oceans and the bottlenecks through which passes the commerce of the world.

"If Germany has control of French West Africa," he pointed out, "then the sinking of the Robin Moor the other day shows how easily our commerce can be threatened, how poor our prospects are of maintaining travel to South America.

"I am not at all reassured by the British victories in Syria and Libya. It looks to me like a Hitler trick, which eventually will draw out the English so they'll be defeated once again."

Moreover, Burlingame contended, he believes "Hitler is about to bring Stalin into the war on the side of the Axis.

"Stalin stands to profit by such a move, and rascals flock together, anyway," he noted.

"Churchill's position is far more perilous in England than ever before," Burlingame commented. "The Syrian campaign was for political reasons as much as any military purpose. And should Churchill fall, he probably would be succeeded by a government—possibly headed by Oswald Moseley, the Black Shirt Fascist—which certainly will conclude an armistice with Hitler.

"We say Britain never would turn on America," Burlingame shouted, "but don't reckon too much on the strength of a defeated people.

"Fifteen months ago, it was beyond our wildest dreams to think Frenchmen would be fighting their brothers. They're doing that now. It was beyond our scope of imagination to think French battleships would be firing on the British—but they have done it.

"The Nazis told the French 'Look at Britain—she helped you too little, too late.' That same shrewd twisting of fact could be applied to the British, should they go down to defeat.

"It would just take a little change of wording—

"'AMERICA HELPED YOU TOO LITTLE, TOO LATE.'"

And then, Burlingame added, "America would be isolated from allies, except for Canada and a dubious Latin America.

"It is only a mile and a half across the Bering Straits from Russia to our continent," he reminded. "It's only 12 hours bomber flight from Norway to Newfoundland, and only a stone's throw from there to the eastern coast, where 60 per cent of our industries are concentrated. It's no farther from South Africa to Brazil than it is from Madison to Los Angeles."

In other words, the Iowa man cried, America had better get ready.

And NOW!

The Turkish government is buying all the wool in Turkey.
