

Mature Riding Crest Of Wave In Picture World

Handsome Lad Advances Far In Two Years

Fine Physique, Pretty Face Send Actor Off On Road To Stardom

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN (CP Hollywood Correspondent)
HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 9 (UP)—About the most widely publicized actor in the business these days is Victor Mature. He's earning a small fortune every week, driving a fancy car, wearing $150 suits.

When we first met him two years ago he was living in a tent. Mature knew what he wanted, then he wanted to be a movie star. He became one in a hurry. Now he's not so sure.

"In fact," said he, "I sometimes wish I was back in the tent."

Victor was earning around $20 a month washing cars while he studied acting in the Pasadena Community Playhouse when Producer Hal Roach gave him a job in 1930. What Roach hired was a magnificent physique, a head of curly black hair, and a handsome face. He exploited these in an item called "1,000,000 B. C.," wherein Mature was clad in a leopard skin and a broad smile. Victor's next picture was "Captain Caution," in which he wore pants all right, but kept bare his mighty chest.

So the ladies began to sigh and there was Mature hitting the hot spots, where the producers and the columnists would see him, with Lana Turner, Betty Grable, and almost every other glamor gal in town. This not only was good business, it was fun.

Mature played in one more picture, in which he kept his clothes on, and then headed for New York, where a combination of circumstances gave him a part in the stage play, "Lady in the Dark," with Gertrude Lawrence. The play was a hit. So was Victor.

He had to fight his way out of the theatre every night, so great was the crush of feminine fans. He went to all the benefits. He auctioned off things for the British war relief. He had his name printed in all the gossip columns. His was a familiar face in all the night clubs.

And pretty soon there were dirty cracks in print about him being a gorgeous hunk of flesh and nothing much else. There he was almost on top, thanks to his own efforts as promotion manager, and here people were sneering Mature who never had seen him.

This hurt. He was going through the same baptism of brutal innuendo that nearly floored Robert Taylor.

Victor kept at the job over-astirge. He did his best on the stage, and after work he kept on working, keeping his name in the papers and the magazines. At one relief shindig, where he was auctioning off ladies' ready-to-wear, he sold a pair of silk undergarments to Martha Stephenson, widow of Hal Kemp. He also sold himself. They were married a few weeks back.

Then they came to Hollywood, where Mature had a new five-year contract to make pictures at 20th Century-Fox. He's co-starring in his first one now with Betty Grable. It's "Hot Spot," but it's a cinematic version of the detective story shocker, "I Wake Up Screaming."

Victor Mature is a movie star. There is no doubt about it. He figures his only chance to get any headlines out of the business is to keep hitting the ball and maybe persuade the customers that he really is a good Joe, even tho he is handsome. We wish him luck. We know personally that he is an okay gent.

COURT CAFE—Notable no-ginx of frog are spotlighted here. Yet it's wonderful how large a food-following flock Court attracts. Boss Dick vows the supplying of fine victuals is but an even steeper proposition designed less for profit and more for convenience of patrons who must eat as well as imbibe.

WALDO—Many of our illustrious palaces of hilarity have doldrum moments when clients gaze apprehensively about silently knowing swizzle sticks and hoping for a good honest shriek of joy. But dull moments are unknown here. Check up and see for yourself.

BARB RAINBOW ROOM—Rich in tradition of displaying the latest in dance craze movements is this air cooled establishment. A smart set of youngsters usually adds a frappe-top of fun that lifts the Barr out of the usual strait run of night cafes.

CASTLE FARM—A veritable concentration camp of conviviality. In fact the management defies any patron to be a stranger here five minutes after entering the main gate. Furthermore the floor-shows are intended for devotees of dermatology who crave fast moving entertainment.

STONE'S GRILL—There's something downright restful and thrust-inspiring about the cool cavern-like interior of this one. And keep your good eye on the "specialist" chisled up on the back-bar. They'll please the purse as well as the palate.

BLINKING OWL—You know that ancient quiz quiz. "It's cooler in the country than in the city?" Well, this was Over place answers said summertime recreation problem in no uncertain terms. It's delightful.

KIRWAN GRILL—Sensibly air-conditioned—there are no sudden blasts that blow the soup right out of your spoon or give a hoarse staff neck. Also the service is just as expeditious and supplied by sleek lassies.

SEVENTH HOME OF SEASON IS BEING ERECTED

BLUFFTON, Aug. 9—Foundation for the seventh new house of the season was well under way by the end of the week, and was seen as a forerunner to a possible residential building boom.

Ulysses Reichenbach, Bluffton carpenter, is starting work on a house being built at a lot he bought from Ed Marquart located on Cherry-st near the county line.

With the building season about half over, the construction of the seventh house brings building this year to the halfway mark of last year's record of 14 houses.

Lester Hahn and Orden Smuckler have completed foundation work for the fifth and sixth new houses of the year and are now ready to begin framing.

Several lots have been purchased recently and it is known that additional residences are being planned with indications that another residential building boom may materialize before the end of the summer.

HOSPITAL HEAD IS APPOINTED

KENTON, Aug. 9—Sister Margaret Regina has been appointed to take charge of San Antonio hospital here, it was announced today. The new superintendent joined the local hospital staff last March after having served in similar institutions in Cincinnati and Michigan.

Other sisters who will be assigned to duty at the local hospital will be announced at a later date. Sister Margaret Regina said.

Book Reviews

Books Reviewed Here May Be Obtained At The Lima Public Library, Main Library

By LEONA COLLIER
Lima Public Library Staff
JACOB'S CORNER. By Herman Fetzer. Houghton Mifflin Inc. $3.
 This book might be the reminiscences of almost any American now middle-aged and will make plenty of people comfortably homesick. Expressed in simple and unaffected prose the book describes a summer vacation on an Ohio farm, where the author went to visit his grandparents some 30 years ago. The comfortable family life, the numerous cousins, the good food, and the friendly neighbors all figure in the narrative and remind the reader of Mrs. Della Lutes' "Country Kitchen."

SOONG SISTERS. By Emily Hahn. Doubleday, Doran & Co., Inc. $3.50.
 The story of the lives of three famous Chinese women, Mme. Sun Yat-sen, widow of the father of the Chinese revolution; Mme. Kung, wife of China's financial wizard; and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the Generalissimo. These women are famous not only through achievements of their husbands but in their own right. Miss Hahn has told their story with a self-effacing intimacy and balanced restraint which make it seem as if the story were telling itself.

UP AT THE VILLA. By Somerset Maugham. Doubleday, Doran & Co., Inc. $1.75.
 Here is a compact novelette so skillfully written that it rivets attention from the first to the last page. The story concerns a woman's indignation and its effect on the lives of the three men who love her. Despite the fact it is an incredible story it completely convinces so long as its spell is exerted. Written with the simple direct style which is the hallmark of Maugham's writing it is a fine example of good story telling.

KENTON SOLONS STUDY PARK AND POOL PROPOSAL

(Lima News Bureau)
KENTON, Aug. 9—The first definite move toward a municipal park and swimming pool was taken Thursday night by Kenton city council when it passed an ordinance transferring $25 from the general fund to the recreation park fund for employing an engineer to make a preliminary survey of a site for the proposed project.

The ordinance also authorized the safety-service director and the city auditor to enter into a contract with an engineer to make the survey.

It was pointed out that following the completion of the survey, it will be necessary for council to ask the county board of elections to place on the ballot for the November election a special tax levy, possibly for 1-mill, to pay for the construction of the park and pool. This must be filed with the elections board within 60 days before the election so that it may be placed on the ballot.

Council's action was taken as some 100 local citizens attended the special meeting. Frank Price, local manufacturer and chairman of the volunteer committee which is promoting the project, spoke briefly in outlining the proposition. He called on some dozen local citizens and high school pupils who attended the meeting. All talked briefly in supporting the measure.
