Fast Action A Substitute For Artistry

Picture Turned Out In As Many Days As Some Take Weeks

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
(Lima News Bureau)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 30—(UP)—Paramount now is in the midst of spending $15,000 to test prospective actors for a forthcoming movie. Down the street on Poverty Row the boys make 10 complete movies for that kind of dough. Tests? They haven't got time.

An that brings us today to the actors in "Tonto Basin Outlaws." Its cloudy and looks like rain, but Director Roy Luby is grinding away anyhow. He's got six days flat to complete this movie, as compared to some of his competitors who think they're being rushed unless they have three months.

So Luby ignores the clouds. What if the film does seem a little lacking in shadows? There's so much action, with the villains chasing the gal across the sagebrush and the three heroes about to capture him, that nobody's going to notice the lack of sun.

The scenes all are being shot in the 2,000-acre ranch of Ray Corrigan. Ranch? Anyhow it's 2,000 acres of rocks and hills and jackrabbits which he bought six years ago. It wasn't good for anything — except making movies. He's been renting it to the film manufacturers by the day ever since.

Landlord Corrigan simultaneously is one of the stars of "Tonto Basin Outlaws." So he's making "Tonto Basin Outlaws" a special price. Its handy like.

His co-stars are John King and Max Terhune. King is the lad who made such a name for himself singing in Ben Bernie's band that Universal brought him to Hollywood. That studio made him the star of "The Road Back," one of those multi-million dollar fizzes of five years ago, and King never got to sing a note in the movies until he started strumming a guitar for "Tonto Basin Outlaws."

Terhune is an old-time vaudeville act and a vaudeville act who had Elmer, the dummy, long before Edgar Bergen graduated from Northwestern university. Terhune and dummy provide the comedy relief.

The Messrs. Corrigan, King and Terhune are known as "The Range Busters." This is their ninth picture together — All their movies will have been completed in less than 30 days. And they are in fifth place in the movie cowboy popularity list. (G. Autry still is number one.)

The closed shop and check-off system of payment of union dues, sought by the strikers, were not adopted.

The settlement between the two factions was reached Friday afternoon in a conference attended by representatives of the workers, the Herzog company and William Gilbert Nowell, field examiner for the National Labor Relations Board.

Preliminary work in reconstituting the plant, shut down since June 8, will be started Tuesday, a representative of the plant said today. Picket lines of striking workers which had been maintained since the men left their jobs at midnight on June 8 were withdrawn Friday.

By MARY LATHROP
Lima Public Library Staff
THE KEYS OF THE KINGDOM. By A. J. Cronin. Little, Brown and Company. $2.50.

A. J. Cronin now gives us his first book since "The Citadel." This one is as dramatic as "Hatter's Castle" and as moving as "The Citadel," but more significant, than either because of its spiritual quality.

It is the story of Father Chishold, a Scots priest who struggled against the too rigid formalism and worldliness of the church. He was a mixture of humility and idealism, believing that tolerance was the highest virtue. The story follows him thru the years of his vicariate in China and finally back to Scotland and an old man wondering if he had been a failure. A truly great and significant novel.
