From that time to this day, Fields has never been out of work. He has traveled all around the world, and in vaudeville days was regarded as the master of jugglers. Always a comedian, Fields got most of the laughs out of his act by pretending that easy tricks were difficult, and doing really difficult tricks with great case. Fields' first venture into a show was in "Watch Your Step" in 1914. He was dropped after the opening night, but Florenz Ziegfeld saw Fields' performance and signed him for the Follies, in which he starred for ten years. His first movie was "Tillie's Punctured Romance," but he did not return to the screen until 1925, when he appeared in D. W. Griffith's "Sally of the Sawdust." With the establishment of the talking screen, Fields began in 1932 the long series of film suc- emy until reinforcements could be cesses that have continued down to the present.

In "Never Give A Sucker An Even Break," Fields heads an imposing cast that includes such well known players as youthful Gloria Jean, Leon Errol, Butch and Buddy, Susan Miller, Franklin Pangborn, Charles Lang and Margaret Dumont.
