NEW YORK. (J.P.) - Arrangements are being made for an early performance in the United States of the Seventh or "war" symphony of Dmitri Shostakovic, the contemporary Soviet composer. In connection with its first public performance in Kuibyshev last month, the composer wrote: "The symphony was inspired by the great events of our patriotic war, but it is not 'battleground music.' My object was to bring out the meaning of events. A central place in the first part of the symphony is given to a requiem in memory of the heroes who sacrificed their lives so that justice and reason might triumph. A single bassoon mourns the death of the heroes, followed by a lyrical conclusion. The war theme does not reappear until the very end of the first part. The second part is a scherzo recalling glorious episodes of the recent past. The thrill of living, the wonder of nature - this is the meaning of the third part, which is an andante. This part leads directly into the fourth, which, with the first, is the fundamental part of the symphony. The first part is devoted to the struggle and the fourth is devoted to the victory. A moving and solemn theme rises to the apotheosis of the whole composition - the presentation of victory."
