Evening

A drizzling rain and an icy wind t made Friday anything but an inviting day for the fishing season opener, but the Lake Wisconsin boys who braved the elements report it was a good pike day.

Al Raasch, boat liveryman at Oakland park, near Poynette, says seven limits of walleyes were caught among the stumps and eight limits "off the grade" before noon of the first day. Raasch caught his own mixed bag limit of four pike and 15 crapples in 45 minutes.

Many northern pike also were aught in Lake Wisconsin including an 18-pounder by Russ Nich-Live bait was the best bet Friday, Raasch reported.

In recent years brown trout have predominated in Dane county streams, largely, no doubt, the result of a campaign to educate southern Wisconsin lishermen into an acceptance of the browns as the "only salvation" of Dane county's trout fishing future.

But Jorgen Moe and others out around Mt. Horeb were encouraged Friday when, Jorgen said, he saw large num-bers of tiny but healthy rainbow and brook trout in Bohn's creek and other streams of the area which, if they survive, should account for some excellent fishing next year.

Fishing well toward the upper caches of the creek north of Mt. Horeb, Jorgen caught his own limit before 9 a. m. and was pleased because not one was a brown. All were brookies and rainbows, mostly small, the biggest measuring about 12 inches.

of which 24 were 11 and 12 inch brookies.

The Black Earth creek produced several good browns Friday, and one Madison lad brought in two nice ones.

Elmer Culver, Frank Mazanet, Larry Hull and Dr. Ed Schneiders checked in with four limit catches totaling 60 trout, but were suspected of raiding their own private pond

Skip Groesbeck says be and Tommy Austin and Herb John were "practically skunked" on the Neenah creek at Oxford. They raught the only nine fish and the largest was barely 17 inches long. Strangely enough, in comparison with the hundreds who parked their cars along Dane county streams, Skip and his crew saw only one other car of fishermen on the Neenah. "We made a nice catch of suckers," Skip reported gloom-ily, "you could catch one about every time you threw in."

Last year he ran into a school of crappies on the Necnah which gave him some lively fly sport but this time he didn't see a single crappie.

"Ad" Bieberstein fished for a week around Watersmeet, Mich, and at no time was more than Pa miles from the village. The snapshots he brought home showed rows and rows of brookies laid out on the ground, and they were nice ones—he says.

Wednesday night's warm show er, accompanied by plenty of thun-der, brought out night crawlers in great numbers. Prospective fishermen, carrying cans and glass jars, picked quarts and quarts of fat worms in the easiest bait gathering bee they have seen for a long time. Reflecting the light of street lamps, crawlers were so numerous in some spots that they made the ground look silvery.

The danger of an old will FF YOU MADE your Will many years ago: Does it contain special bequests that, paid from your present estate, would leave too little for your family? Does it dispose of property that you no longer own? Does it fail to provide for someone who has become dependent on you? Does it leave part of your estate to someone whose inheritance would be safer if left in trust?

Does it name an executor and trustee who is still capable of managing your estate efficiently and conserving it for your family?

Consider your Will today. You may find that it needs revision. And discuss with us the advantages of naming this experienced, responsible institution as executor and trustee.
