Two Fine New Hits Booked To Open At State Thursday

"Suspicion" Stars Cary Grant And Joan Fontaine; "Joe Smith, American," Will Be Second Film On Bill

The doubt that separates man and wife and complete absence of doubt in the superiority of the American way of life characterize the film presentations Thursday at the State theatre.

The first "doubtful" theme is exemplified in "Suspicion" starring Cary Grant and Joan Fontaine. The incomparable Alfred Hitchcock directed. Second exhibit is "Joe Smith,

Victor Mature plays the part of the composer who whipped up that "frivolous" tune that still haunts man's singing soul, in the movie "My Gal Sal" at the Quilna theatre. The inspirational subject for that composition is portrayed by lovely Rita Hayworth. Another famous ditty, "On the Banks of the Wabash" also is offered.

A stark study in horror, fresh and dripping from the Edgar Allen Poe, is "The Mystery of Marie Roget" now at the Sigma theatre. Maria Montez is the Likewise shown is the light and airy dish of young love "Almost Married." Robert Paige and Jane Frazee play the chief
