After Long Wait to Start Shaving

DALLAS, Tex. —(U.P.)— A 20-minute wait outside a bathroom door ignited the smoldering feud between H. B. Moran, Jr., 23, and his 52-year-old father, police said today.

The angry youth fired a .22 caliand property damage, but may prove definitely detrimental to the defense activities so necessary for the protection of our country," the appeal said.

"We can help tremendously," it suggested, "by omitting for the coming Fourth of July period, all unwarranted and needless shootharpist, contributes in no small degree to the popularity of Gus Haenschen's or-chestra, heard Saturday nights on Columbia network's "Saturday Night Serenade". She's a native of Memphis, Tenn., and has been playing the harp since the age of 7.

The angry youth fired a .22 calibet rifle through the door and critically wounded his father.

The younger Moran told pelice that he had wanted to shave, but his father wouldn't unlock the bathroom door. After waiting about 20 minutes, he left the house.

"Before I got to the car line," he told police, "I changed my mind. I stopped at a store and bought some rifle shells. Then I went home and loaded the rifle."

Mrs. Moran, his mother, saw him return, stand outside the door where the argument between father and son was resumed. She told police that her son suffered from a nervous disorder and that she long had feared an outbreak. She said he accused his father of favoring an adopted son.
