AzlatanChurch Museum Has Indian 'Brick'

LAKE MILLS-Fine specimens of what is known as "Aztalan brick" are shown at the historic church museum in the Indian relic collection at Aztalan.

Authorities agree that the "brick," really a mixture of clay and grass used as a plaster, was formed accidentally when the stockade at the ancient Indian village was burned, probably by an enemy tribe. The plaster was used as a covering for the stockade, it is believed.

When the wall fell, it is believed the plaster broke into small lumps of "bricks" such as now are found
