

Shirley Temple Returns To Sigma In Grown-Up Picture

"Miss Annie Rooney" Scheduled To Open Wednesday; Story Of West Point Told In Quilna Film

Shirley Temple, the wee lass of yesterday, returns to the screen to attempt to win fans with a more grown-up personality in "Miss Annie Rooney," which commences Wednesday at the Sigma theatre. The former dimpled ham Gargan, Guy Kibbee, and another child favorite who darling of cinema fans receives ample support from Will-has grown to full height, Dickie Moore. The co-feature is "Dudes Are Pretty People."

The little known story of West Point before it became the tremendous factor in war preparation that it now is, is told in "Ten Gentlemen From West Point," now at the Quilna theatre. Stars of the picture are George Montgomery, John Sutton, Maurice O'Hara and Laird Cregar. Ray Milland, John Wayne and Paulette Goddard are the starring performers of "Keep the Wild Wind," a story of sea adventures now showing at the Ohio theatre. Caribbean hurricanes, howling toward the Florida cape and hurling great sailing ships on the shoals as prey for piratical salvage men, set the mood for the film. The singing star of western films, Gene Autry, appears in another of his many adventures among the bad men who always manage to pop into his pictures in the current Lyric attraction, "Stardust on the Sage." Harry Langdon is the star of the co-feature, "House of Boys."

Against a gay, laugh-filled background of delightful comedy and rich humor, Shirley Temple is presented as a Modern Miss, who gets her first romantic screen kiss in "Miss Annie Rooney," at the Sigma theatre Wednesday.

In the film, Shirley is seen as a girl who lives on the wrong side of the tracks but wins everyone on both sides with her warm loveliness and infectious gaiety. She is the granddaughter of a retired policeman and daughter of an insurance salesman who would rather promote billion-dollar ideas than work at his job. When Annie Rooney gets her family mixed with that of a socialite boy friend from Park Avenue, the complications are astounding and side-splitting. But it all comes out just right, with Annie innocently engineering success for her father's big idea.

Shirley Temple is superb as the fourteen-year-old who becomes romantically attached to the Park Avenue scion, played by Dickie Moore. And further acting laurels belong to such top-notch actors as William Gargan, Shirley's father in the film, Guy Kibbee, who portrays a grandfather, Roland Du Prez, the noted dancing star, and Peggy Ryan, who plays Annie's bosom friend.

Among the gayest scenes seen in "Miss Annie Rooney" are a series of jitterbug sequences which were filmed with the young stars and some of Hollywood's best dancing talent.

The current Gene Autry western, "Stardust on the Sage" (now showing at the Lyric theatre), is conclusive proof that Edith Fellows is one child star whose brilliance will carry over into her adolescence and adulthood. She plays a delightfully human role in the film, and demonstrates that she possesses enough beauty and charm to place her in the front ranks of the coming crop of ingenues.

Edith was born in Boston, the only child of Willis and Harriet Gerrier Fellows. Of English-Scotch descent, she numbers among her forebears such celebrities as Charles Lamb, the essayist, and William Lamb, writer and politician.

Edith was brought up by her grandmother, Elizabeth Lambe, into machinery, the word "sabotage" came into being.

was three years old she has been appearing in pictures, hundreds of them, mostly bit roles at first until Director La Cava selected her from among hundreds of applicants to play the part of Claudette Colbert's ill-mannered and saucy foster daughter in "She Married Her Boss." Follow-up pictures included "One Way Ticket," "Turboat Princess," "And So They Were Married," "Pennies From Heaven," "Jane Eyre," "Keeper of the Bees" and "Black Fury."

Edith has also appeared in revivals of "The Drunkard" and "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" at Los Angeles theatres, toured the country in vaudeville, and has appeared at the World's Fair in New York.

Edith sings very well, and her repertoire includes operatic arias in Italian, French and Spanish, jazz numbers and blues melodies.

ALTHO GEORGE MONTGOMERY is one of the few Montana ranch boys who have ever made good in the film capital, practically none of his fan mail comes from his home state.

Since being cast in a number of important roles, the latest of which is "Ten Gentlemen From West Point," now at the Quilna theatre, the lanky ex-cowboy has seen his fan-mail increase to the point where it now rivals that of the studio's other leading men, who have been established much longer than he has.

A breakdown of Montgomery's fan mail recently turned over to executives by the Fan Mail Department, brings to light some interesting facts:

Virtually ninety-five per cent of Montgomery's fan mail comes from the Eastern seaboard states, and less than a fraction of one per cent comes from his home state of Montana. Ninety-three per cent of all his letters are from women, with over fifty per cent of that number coming from those in the age bracket of sixteen to twenty-five!

Because the French used to throw their wooden shoes, "sabotage" came into being.
