

Shep Fields Orchestra To Hold Ohio Stage For Day

Bela Lugosi Plays In Thriller Now At Lyric; "Male Animal" At State; Quilna Has Double Bill

Shep Fields and his orchestra, purveyors of a sensational new style of music as popular as his "rippling rhythm" of a few months ago, moves into the Ohio theatre for a one-day stand as one of the feature stage attractions of the year. On the screen will be Lupe Velez and Leon Errol in "The Mexican Spitfire Sees a Ghost." Showing for the last time Tuesday is "Take a Letter, Darling," starring Rosalind Russell and Fred MacMurray.

Past master of art of playing bogie man is Bela Lugosi, who gives out with more of the chillsy stuff in "The Corpse Vanishes," now at the Lyric theatre. This time Lugosi is case number 838, the man with a mania for stealing newlywed ladies. Wilfred Lawson and Movita are the stars of the co-feature, "Tower of Terror."

A staid professor who cannot get the "rah rah" enthusiasm of his fellow alumni at the annual college home-coming is the character portrayed by Henry Fonda in "The Male Animal," now at the State theatre. Also in the film version of Elliott Nugent's stage play, is Olivia de Havilland, Jack Carson and Joan Leslie. Co-featured is "Lareeny, Inc.," starring Edward G. Robinson.

A thrilling drama of love and intrigue in the post-Civil War days is at the Quilna where "Lady for a Night" is now showing. John Wayne and Joan Blondell are the romantic stars of the film. Also showing is "Yokel Boy," starring Albert Dekker and Joan Davis.

Currently on view at the Sigma theatre is "Jackass Mail," starring Wallace Beery, Marjorie Main and J. Carroll Nash, and "Lady Gangster," starring Faye Emerson, Julie Bishop and Frank Wilcox.

A film based on Uncle Sam's newest and toughest outfit, "The Parachute Battalion," commences Wednesday at the Lyric theatre.

On wary guard against the army of "bomber-hunters" who religiously study historical films for anachronisms and other errors, Republic took elaborate pains during the filming of "Lady For a Night." Joan Blondell-John Wayne starring vehicle now at the Quilna theatre.

Alto technical advisors studied and blue-pencilled the script and property and costume plots, there were some props which were discarded, even though they had been given official approval, because the average layman might consider them inconsistent.

An example of the cigarist with which Joan Blondell was supposed to set fire to her showboat, the "Memphis Belle." Just when, in American history, did ladies start to smoke? And since when, for that matter, were cigars smoked at all by man or woman?

Republic's technical advisors put their heads together, poured over numerous tomes on the subject, and finally agreed that cigars actually were being smoked in the post-Civil War era, even the cheercoats and corn-cob pipes were more popular.

But Director Leigh Jason was still unconvinced. He felt reasonably certain that if Republic pictured Miss Blondell, dressed in the garb of the 1850's, smoking a cigar, the studio would receive tons of jering letters pointing out the supposed anachronism.

When studio officials disagreed with him, he hit upon the idea of polling the man in the street Gallup fashion. Consequently, the first dozen visitors who walked thru the Republic gates were asked whether, in their opinion,

Those who have recently heard Shep Fields and his "new music," scheduled to appear at the Ohio theatre on Wednesday are universally convinced that here at last is "something new under the sun"—and something very welcome.

For the benefit of defense factory workers the first program commences at 12:30 p. m., with the first stage show at 1:50 p. m. Fields' sensational new style meets what has been a growing need in musical America for something to bridge the gap between the extremes of sweet and swing—yet it is definitely not a hybrid, but a manner and instrumentation that is different from any other.

A real appreciation of current musical desires and a completely original conception of instrumentation and style are the principal factors in the new music created by Shep Fields. Instrumentation of his band includes nine saxophones and four rhythm—and the musical product of this set-up is as enjoyable and diverting as it is novel. There are no trumpets or trombones in the band.

Fields' venture with this orchestra, resulted in reviews that were unanimously laudatory. Partisans of sweet and swing forgot their

Ladies smoked cigars in Civil War times.

Several replied grumpily that "ladies never smoked cigars."

All five of the women questioned, however, were positive that cigar smoking by women was introduced by Alice Roosevelt Longworth when, as "Princess Alice," she was a White House debutante. Several of the men concurred in this opinion, and as a result a last-minute change was made in the script.

So instead of Miss Blondell setting fire to the show boat with a controversial cigar, Joan Wayne does it with a conventional cigar.

LYRIC

Thrills of an unusually hair-raising variety are provided in "The Corpse Vanishes" the drama which is now at the Lyric theatre. The film represents the "horror" picture at its best.

Bela Lugosi appears in the starring role, and contributes an outstanding performance in the type of role which he knows so well how to handle. In the story he is a strange creature who successively abducts a number of young brides who have apparently died from the effects of a powerful drug, and puts them to a use which is horrifying and at the same time pseudo-scientific.

The action which culminates in an absorbing climax carries a high degree of interest as it follows the machinations of the evil Lugosi, and the picture qualifies as a completely successful effort.

The cast supporting the star is talented throat, and includes many well-known Hollywood players. Among those who do especially good work are Luana Walters, Joan Barclay, Tristram Coffin, Minerva Urecal, Gwen Kenyon, Gladys Faye and Vince Barnett. Director Wallace Fox has been most successful in maintaining suspense and creating an atmosphere of horror, and has contributed importantly to the success of the picture.

Guest Hobbyists Inaugurate New "Hobby Lobby" Tuesday

Story Of Chicago Orphan Who Rose From News Vendor To Fight Managing Will Be Program Feature

A dazzling array of guest hobbyists, headed by Mrs. Donald M. Nelson, wife of the Chairman of the War Production Board, will inaugurate the new series of Dave Elman's "Hobby Lobby" program, at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday over WABC. "Hobby Lobby" will be heard every Tuesday evening thereafter. Among the other interesting hobbyists will be Judy Canova, famous movie comedienne who collects hill-billy songs; an amazing 8-year-old girl drummer-xylophonist-singer; a man who performs Herculean tasks, and a noted radio official who collects the amusing "fluffs" of radio announcers.

The story of John "Socking" Kelly, a Chicago orphan who rose from newspaper vending to fight managing and accumulated $15,000 in the process will be featured on Ave You a Missing Hour program Tuesday, 8 p. m. over WABC. Kelly, after making a name for himself in the lightweight field, became manager for such fighters as Terry McGovern, Paddy McFarland and Eddie McGoorty. He died intestate in Chicago May 31, this year, leaving an estate of $15,000. Rightful heirs are his cousins, named Hiller, believed to be living in Chicago at the present time.

Joe Baker, refrigeration workman and suspected murderer, will once again wage a desperate fight for his life when he is heard over WJZ in "Famous Jury Trials," Tuesday at 9 p. m.

Baker was brought to trial when a night watchman found Ed Batley, proprietor of a flower shop murdered and the days' receipts missing. The "Flower Shop" murder pointed toward Baker as investigation established that Joe, supposed to be working in the shop at the time, could not prove his whereabouts.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

The Lima News, Lima, Ohio

"Thanks, Alvinia Baldwin, Buckland, Ohio, for your appealing letter published under VOICE OF THE PEOPLE, July 11, as one of THE LIMA NEWS. Also, thanks to the Lima News for getting it much deserved publicity.

There is a great need to stir in the hearts of men, women and children a kinder consideration for the well-being of God's muddled dumb creatures. The trouble is we are all too prone to silence on the subject. How can man expect kindness when he goes on his selfish way indifferent to the crying needs of helpless, uneducated creatures, failing to teach and help of the children the importance of tenderness, the simple art of being kindly consideration?

How can God help those who, thru this cruelty of neglect, bring misfortune and suffering upon themselves? It is heart-breaking and sickening this callous inhumanity of humans. When will it be realized and understood that cruelty, in greater or lesser degree, is its own sure suffering?

That one who sees suffering in the eyes of an animal and does something about it is the one who will do much toward furthering the great unity of purpose which will eventually bring about the much desired universal peace.

Thru love God gave life to all and this must include all of His creatures. So, man, be kind and reap the reward of kindness! Again, THANKS for your all-out kindly effort.

Sincerely,
Carmen Penn Plinn,

SPECIAL RITES ARE SCHEDULED FOR DEAF HERE

More than 20 deaf mutes from Lima and vicinity are expected to attend a special worship service to be held at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in Christ Episcopal church.

The Rev. Richard O. Petersen, rector of the local parish, who arranged for the special program, explained that the Rev. H. A. L. Grindon of Cleveland would conduct the service. Although a deaf mute himself, the Cleveland cleric is widely known for his ability to handle such special rites. In addition to being the rector of St. Philip's church, the Rev. Grindon is missionary to deaf mutes in the entire diocese.

Following the Thursday evening observance a social hour will be held in the Episcopal parish house. Movies will be shown and refreshments served. "Special invitation has been extended to those in Tiffin, Findlay and other Lima area communities," the Lima rector explained.
