Musical Comedy Film Heads Program Coming To The Lyric

"Mrs. Miniver" Still At The Ohio With Quilna Theatre Offering "Citizen Kane;" Bob Hope In Star Role At State

With a super-abundance of laughter, good humored gayety and light hearted music, the latest Judy Canova starrer, "Sleepytime Gal," moves into the Lyric theatre Tuesday with an impressive supporting cast including Tom Brown, Billy Gilbert, Ruth Terry, Thurston Hall and Elisha Cook, Jr. Edmund Lowe is the star of the co-feature, "Klondike | 35 Vase. Fury." Showing for the last times Monday are "Fugitive Valley" and "Dawn Express."

Continuing its impressive run at the Ohio theatre is "Mrs. Miniver," starring Green! Garson, Walter Pidgeon and a host of supporting actors in a story of London during its darkest hour, prior to and immediately after Dunkirk. The supporting performers include Teresa Wright, Dame Whitty, Reginald Owen. Henry Travers, Richard Ney and Henry Wilcoxon.

With a story that might well have been taken from the life of one of America's best known publishers, "Citizen Kane," provides the current entertainment at the Quilna theatre. Orson Welles, the genius who stars, produces and directs the film, gives sufficient evidence that his films are no

Bob Hope and Madeleine Carroll are the stars of "My Favorite Blonde," currently at the State theatre. Hope appears as a traveling vaudevillian who unwittingly falls into a spy chase led by British agent Carroll. Also showing is "Fly By Night," starring Nancy Kelly and Richard Carlson.

Featuring an all-American dance band, "Syncopation," currently at the Sigma theatre, is a musical Welles endeavored to perfect an film starring Adolphe Menjou. Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville and George Bancroft, Musicians in the cast include Charlie Barnet. Benny Goodman, Harry James, Jack Jonny, Gene Krupa, Alvina Roy and Joe Venuit. Co-featured is "Night in New Orleans."

QUILNA

Orson Welles made his advent in Hollwood with a carefully cultivated beard, a reputation for doing things in a cock-eyed manner, and a four-way contract.

It was August 1939, when he arrived intent on making a motion picture version of Joseph Conrad's "Heart of Darkness." It did not come off, for the simple reason that conditions made it inadvisable to film that subject. He shaved off his beard. He then started work on "The Smiler With a Knife," written with a certain feminine star in mind. She turned the unusual camera technique, in which he had the able assistance of Gregg Toland, rightly considered one of the outstanding cinematographers. The closeup is sparingly used. Kane's life is pieced together for the story thru the eyes of those who knew him best. One of the big surprises of "Citizen Kane" is said to be the appearance of Welles himself. As the ruthless, magnetic, selfish industrial tycoon of the picture, a man who thinks his wealth will buy him everything, he promises to bring film audinees something really new in the field of screen entertainment.

This is "Citizen Kane," the film now at such pictures as Scatterbrain' the Quilna. Welles started produc- ["Sis Hopkins" and "Puddin'head," tion in August, 1940, a year after he arrived in the town. Welles is their first screen appearance with him, among them being Dorothy Comingore and Ruth Warrick, who play the two wives of Kane.
