AT THE ORPHEUM: Shep Fields orchestra. TYPE: Band and vaudeville.

HIGH POINTS: Fields' smooth presentation of a welldrilled orchestra . . . The generally high quality of the musicians, both in ensemble and as soloists . . . Proff that you can swing it without blowing holes through the roof-that good dance music and noise aren't synonymous.

Dick Mulliner's topnotch vocalizing, especially in "Johnny Doughboy" and "The Lost Chord". .. Scott Morrow's chuckle-producing version of "Nursie, Nursie."

The comedy of Ray Parker and "Porthole," a ventriloquist's dummy . . . (Even the one about football season and blankets got a laugh) . . . But I'm not sure Parker really is a ventriloquist; some of his stuff was just too good to be true. If he is, he's got the best stunt in the business in working his dummy from the front rows of the auditorium. If he isn't, he's still a swell showman.

LOW POINTS: Last week, I kicked about Gray Gordon's overemphasis on brass. There isn't any brass in Fields' new band, so I guess I'd better keep still.

VERDICT: First-rate entertainment, good music-except when all those saxes remind you too much of the Six Brown brothers.

ON THE SCREEN: "Parachute Nurse," an interesting exposition of paranurses' training, enhanced by mild comedy and a slight plot. Sometimes slow, but never dull.

HERE COME THE LUNTS: Three baggage cars full of scenery. electrical effects, and other stage equipment for "The Pirate," E. N. Behrman's new comedy, were en route to Madison today. They'll be used in the world premiere at the Wisconsin Union theater Sept. 14,
