State Suicides Hit 16-Year Low

Board Cites War as Probable Reason

The lowest suicide rate for Wisconsin in 16 years was recorded in the quarterly bulletin of the state board of health issued today, and the reason probably is the war.

If the experiences of the last war are borne out, a steady decline in the rate until at least iwo years after the war can be expected, the study revealed.

Coen, U.W. Man, Lyle Talbot Joins Air Force as Wife Changes Forces

Transfers to U.S.* Group from RAF

A University of Wisconsin grad-uate, Capt. Oscar H. Coen, was listed among the three American Eagle squadrons who exchanged the Royal Air Force blue for the khaki of the United States army air forces in England Tuesday, it was learned today.

Capt. Coen, news dispatches said, and his comrade fliers came into U.S. service after having destroyed 73½ enemy aircraft while flying with the British. The half was part of a Dornier flying boat shared with a British squadron.
Graduated in 1939

Now 25, Capt. Coen said he had thought of nothing since Dec. 7 except a chance to fight in his own country's uniform. He was graduated in 1939 from the university here, records disclosed, majoring in agriculture and education. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Coen lived at route 1, Pound, Wis., at that time. At present Capt. Coen's home address is Carbondale, Ill. The Badger flier taught agriculture at Thompson, Ill., high school before going to Britain 20 months ago, he told newsmen. "The main reason I came over here," he said, "was the hope that I would get into the American air force. I was 'washed out' for flying deficiency at Randolph Field, Capt. Coen and the other Americans now are members of the No pursuit group, eighth United States air force, and have been flying as members of squadrons 71, 121, and 133 of the RAF. They will continue to use British Spittire planes, they said.

'Good Hunting'

Air Chief Marshal Sir William Sholto Douglas, commanding the British fighter command, wished the Americans forewell and "good hunting" Tuesday, while Maj. Gen. Carl Spaatz, chief of the United States Air Forces in the European war theater, and Brig. Gen. Frank O'D Hunter, commanding general of the fighter command, welcomed them into the U.S. ranks.

The Americans received the U. S. wing insignia at Tuesday's ceremonies, and expressed keenest pleasure at being back with their 'own crowd."

But if this postwar period is accompanied by the same economic and social disorganization which followed World War I, a definite upward trend is likely to follow.

The board of health study did not draw any conclusions, however, as to the correlation of either the war or the business cycle and the suicide rate, but pointed
