

Lionel Barrymore Presents "Refugee Boy" Wednesday

"The Mayor Of Our Town" Opens New Fall Series; Bob Burns Also Returns To Airwaves At 9 P. M.

For his opening appearance over WABC network on Wednesday at 9:30 p. m. Lionel Barrymore as "The Mayor of Our Town," will present one of the most powerful stories thus far on the dramatic series.

Titled "The Refugee Boy," the script depicts in heart-warming sequence the Mayor's efforts to return to normal life a war-torn English lad who has been sent to America following a bombing which killed his mother.

Bob Burns himself, in the character that made him famous, returns to the air over WABC Wednesday at 9 p. m.

Opening story on Burns' new "Arkansas Traveler" series will be "The Adams Family," with Bob straightening out, in his humorous, homespun fashion, a tangle in the affairs of the Arkansas folks.

"Situation Wanted." Experienced handyman and manager looking for position in dignified tavern. Currently employed but unable to remain on friendly terms with employer. Contact "Archie" at Duffy's Tavern. No references.

According to Archie, portrayed by Ed Gardner on WJZ's "Duffy's Tavern," he just can't get along with Duffy, his ever absent boss and proprietor of the place. The program will be heard on Tuesday at 8:30 p. m.

"Flight to Arras" the story of gallant French fliers who risked almost certain death to preserve the honor of their country during the dark hours of May, 1940, will be the "Author's Playhouse" presentation, Wednesday at 11:30 p. m. over WEAF.

Jean Tennyson, Robert Weede and Jan Peerce, singing stars of "Great Moments in Music," will broadcast over the WABC Wednesday at 10 p. m.

Mary Astor, screen star, will be Eddie Cantor's guest on "Time to Smile" over WEAF Wednesday at 9 p. m., when the program originates at the Air Training Center in Santa Ana, Calif. Cantor will burlesque Miss Astor's latest picture, "Across the Pacific," and will also turn his attention on Hattie McDaniel's cooking. The Mad Russian will edge in, trying to teach Miss Astor combat flying. During all this madness Dinah Shore, featured songstress, sings and a new permanent cast addition, The Ambassadors Male Quartet, will also be heard. Harry von Zell and Cookie Fairchild's orchestra round out the bill.

GUARD UNIT LANDED

KENTON, Oct. 7—Kenton Co. "I." believed to be the oldest Ohio State Guard unit in the state. Monday night was praised by Col. Sam Richmond of Cincinnati, commanding officer of the First regiment: Lieut. Col. Cameron Saunders of Cincinnati, his chief aid; and Major Stritzburg, chaplain, during an informal and unannounced inspection. Also present was Lt. Col. Cecil J. Davis of Kenton, commanding Second battalion of the First Infantry, which is composed of Kenton, Piqua and Sidney.

Charlie Chaplin's Famed "Gold Rush" Brought Back

Comedy Of Silent Screen Revived; State Also Offers "Night In New Orleans" Starting Thursday

Revamped for second World War consumption is Charlie Chaplin's magnificent opus, "The Gold Rush" that begins Thursday at the State theatre. Revealing Chaplin in all his comic-pathos glory as still master of any ultra-funny screen vehicle, the "Rush" is as funny now as in the silent days. Also released on the morrow at the State is "Night in New Orleans."

The perennial "stout fellow" and suave gent of moviedom, Ronald Colman, reappears in a fascinating role in "The Talk of the Town" evident currently at the Quilna theatre. Also teamed up in this superior film are Jean Arthur, this column's personal choice for "woman of the year" leader in the cinema world and Cary Grant.

The self-styled genius of miracle movies, Orson Welles presents what is modestly entitled his greatest new achievement, "The Magnificent Ambersons" released for the first time Wednesday at the Sigma theatre. It encompasses a great dramatic cast. Hit No. 2 at the Sigma tells of a woman, rogue and devil in "Isle of Missing Men."

The life story of Lou Gehrig, traditional great man of baseball is revealed in "The Pride of the Yankees," now displayed at the Ohio theatre. Gary Cooper gives an extremely fine interpretation of Gehrig's career. An able supporting cast includes Teresa

One stars in "The Talk of the Town," stirring new romantic comedy at the Quilna.

Because 201 of the picture's 344 scenes take place in one setting—a New England farmhouse—Stevens had Columbia's largest stage converted into a typical New England scene. In addition to a complete, modernized, two-story farmhouse, the setting also included surrounding buildings, country lanes, trees, a rear rustic garden with running brook, live flower gardens and a quarter acre of growing lawn.

Other major settings included a New England courtroom, the Boston postoffice, a factory building, and the massive corridor and interior of the United States Supreme Court.

Because of the reverberating echoes of voices in the great corridor of the U. S. Supreme Court building in Washington, Stevens sought to duplicate the sound effect in the film setting. As Grant and Miss Arthur spoke their lines on the stage, telephone wires carried their voices to a loud speaker in an empty church twelve miles away. There, the voices bounced around the empty walls, were picked up by a special microphone and relayed back to the mixing board.

P. T. A. NEWS

The Roosevelt Parent-Teacher-Teacher's association will meet Friday at 2:30 p. m. at the school. School Superintendent J. McLean Lovell will speak on "Our City and County Schools." Alfred Reider will sing, and devotions will be in charge of Mrs. James V. Skates. Harold Meredith, president of a citizens' committee for the passage of a three-mill school tax levy at the November election, will speak briefly on the levy.

No Need For You To Lay In Your Winter's Gas Supply IT IS BEING STORED FOR YOU UNDERGROUND

How Underground Storage of Gas Made History Before Pearl Harbor . . .

The man at the left has no problem of fuel storage. Yet, he looks to the winter confident that he and his family will be kept warm by a fuel he can't see but he knows is there, always available. He can do that only because of some farsighted thinking and planning by gas production specialists of the Gas Industry. Yes, the discovery of how gas could be stored in depleted wells in the off-peak summer months made history long before Pearl Harbor. But it has been a big factor in making it possible for your gas service to meet the demands of industries since the war, and the needs of domestic customers, too. This is the double duty job of gas service today.

HOW UNDERGROUND STORAGE WORKS—The gas is pumped into the storage fields under pressure (A) travels through existing pipe lines (B) to the well connection (C) is forced down through the well casing (D) into the sands (E) where it is stored safely until the winter demand. The Production Department now has 125 storage wells in two large fields which will store 20 billion cubic feet of gas by winter.

leading into Ohio from out of the state. This is the assurance to war industries and domestic users of an adequate supply of gas in extremely cold weather.

In the summer months when gas pipe lines are not used normally to capacity, gas is brought in from out of the state and stored in two Ohio fields located relatively close to the markets. These fields covering definite limited areas, were almost exhausted from former withdrawals of gas. Located several miles from the fields are high pressure compressors which force the gas to the fields, in through the well heads and back into the porous rock formations far underground. By the time cold weather comes, some 20,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas will be stored for the peak demands of winter. When the conditions demand, the process can be reversed and gas taken from the fields at the rate of 100,000,000 cubic feet a day to supplement the gas supply from regular producing wells and lines
