Some of his best radio ideas have been born in the wee hours.

MIAMI, Fla. - (UPI) - When a baseball player blows up - goes up in the air, as fans say - he is finished for the day. But when Capt. Basil Rowe of Pan American Airways goes up in the air - well, that is a habit.

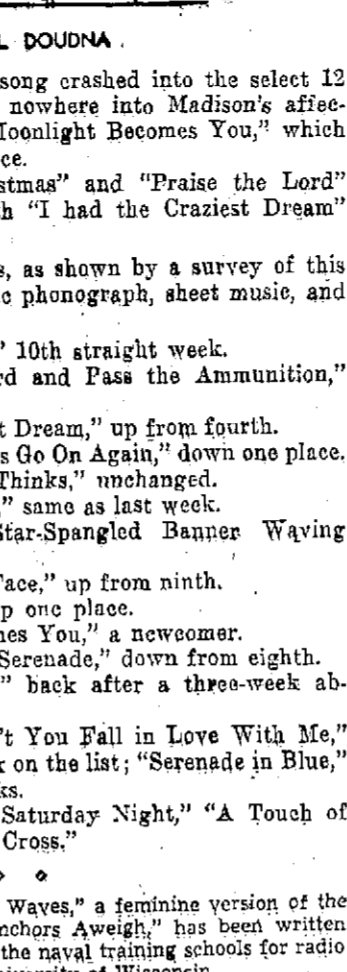

Rowe has spent 18,890 hours flying, equivalent to more than six of his 46 years. During this time Rowe has flown 2,100,374 miles, a distance equal to 84 times around the world.

Rowe's flying career was inaugurated when he was a boy as a reward for helping an old barn-stormer repair his crashed plane. He has been flying ever since.

Rowe flies regular assignments over Pan American routes between Miami and South America.
