He likes to fish and hunt, and JORNS wherever he can run in a bit of these sports on his drawing of the outdoors, you'll see them sprout. Jorns, 44 years old, was born and raised in Buraboo. He has painted since he was large enough to handle a brush. He attended the university art school, and was graduated from the Chicago Art Institute.

His paintings have been displayed and received honors in numerous art exhibits, including the Chicago International, the New York Metropolitan, and the Wisconsin Art Salon.

In 1927, Jorns was made a member of the staff of the Colt School of Art, where he taught charcoal drawing. He occasionally does an oil painting, but his favorite hobby is being inspired by a scene, and hour and a half to two hours.

Most of his paintings on display now at the USO center, are scenes in Dane county. One night scene was painted when Jorns became
