character, and his dismay over the proposal episode is excruciatingly funny. Lewis Stone plays the judge and father, and his final talk with Mickey before the departure for college is inspiring.

A new feminine charmer dawns in the picture in the person of Esther Williams, heretofore famous as a swimming champion.

The regular Hardy favorites, including Fay Holden as the mother, Cecilia Parker as the sister, Sara Haden as Aunt Milly and Ann Rutherford as Polly Benedict appear.

Blistering thrills, breath-taking chills and bullet-streaked action are promised local movie fans on Friday when the timely, new film, "Sabotage Squad" shows at the Lyric theatre with Bruce Bennett, Kay Harris and Eddie Norris playing the leading roles.

In what has been hailed as one of the most ruthless spy hunts that ever took place in the U. S. A., Bennett and another detective are assigned the task of running down a saboteur leader whose crimes have shocked the nation.

Finally he learns that the girl who insists he proposed is a psychology student, doing so to watch his reactions, and his girl friend Polly Benedict is in on the plot.

He has a heart-to-heart talk with his father, who sees his point about meeting the college president. His troubles over, he sets forth gallily for college.

Mickey Rooney is his comical graven with the images of a dove and condor.

Thru an accident, the saboteur, played by Sidney Blackmer, loses his medal to a pick-pocket; small-time gambler Eddie Norris recovers it. The police grab Norris in a raid on a book-making establishment and from that moment on, the entire force is put to work tracking down the enemy agents.

The trail leads to barber shop, a tenement hideout, a skyscraper office, a dreary warehouse, and finally, a speeding truck, loaded with dynamite, on its way to the Vargas Airplane factory.

How Norris, with the help of the police, contrives to stop this speeding truck before it can give America its death-dealing blow, is said to be revealed in a smashing climax to a smashing story.

Abbott And Costello Are "Comedy Caravan" Guests

Kate Smith And Her Entire Radio Troupe Will Appear At Atlantic City Friday

Abbott and Costello, two of moviedom's maddest mirth-makers, will be heard, in addition to their own regular Thursday night WEAF program, as guest stars on the "Comedy Caravan" Friday at 10 p. m. with Lanny Ross, Herb Shriner and Cugat's orchestra.

Kate Smith will move her entire radio troupe to Atlantic City, N. J., the great seaside resort that now is home to thousands of young men of the Army Air Forces Technical Training Command, for her Friday night broadcast over WABC, at 8 p. m.

Jan Struther, author of "Mrs. Miniver" and the woman who has appeared most frequently as guest on "Information Please," will be heard again on the program, Friday, WEAF, 8:30 p. m.

Thugs, drags and a blonde who knows her weapons lure Nick Charles on the murky trail of a bogus count in "The Case of the Missing Pants," a knock-out, drag-out episode in "The Adventures of the Thin Man," on Friday, WAHR, 8:30 p. m.

In view of the figures recently released by the Marriage License Bureau, the opening number of a concert Friday, WEAF 8 p. m. is most appropriate.

Governor Earl Warren of California will espouse the cause of safety in an appearance as guest speaker on the "Men, Machines and Victory" broadcast over WJZ, Friday at 10:45 p. m.

Speaking from Sacramento, Gov. Warren will be heard in behalf of the War Production Fund to conserve Manpower, to urge increased war production thru the reduction of accidents in war plants.

Five apprentice seamen who haven't been to sea will set sail on the airwaves when "Meet Your Navy" is broadcast over WJZ on Friday, at 8:30 p. m.

One of the most unusual mystery tales to come to the screen is "The Undying Monster," due Friday night at the Quilna theatre.

Based on legends of the werewolf, a mythical monster who changes from human into savage, bloodthirsty beast, the picture promises to be a chiller.

Heather Angel plays Helga Hammond, an aristocratic English girl whose family history conceals the secret of the monster which terrifies the town.

John Howard is cast as Oliver, Helga's brother, and James Ellison appears as a Scotland Yard detective. Supporting players are Bramwell Fletcher, Heather Thatcher and Halliwell Hobbes.

John Brahm, skilled in mystery techniques, directed this production. Realism, as far as possible, has been his aim. As a result, much of the picture was filmed in that hazy half-light so characteristic of the bleak British coast.

Milton Berle and Mary Beth Hughes star in the spotlight comedy cast in "Over My Dead Body," the film coming Friday to the Quilna theatre. Cast as the "Whodunit," Milton fancies himself as a writer of mysteries. He gets embroiled in a murder, and ends up heading for the electric chair.

Reginald Denny and Frank Orth are featured in the film which was directed by Malcolm St. Clair.

The year's most spectacular film is on its way to the Sigma theatre. Yet, spectacular, in its true sense, does not describe "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

The picture has and does several things which make it a fine film, but the warmth of its story makes it great! It is booked for showing Saturday to Tuesday, inclusive.

"Yankee Doodle Dandy" tells the life story of America's greatest showman—George M. Cohan. And it tells that story in the grandest way possible—thru the songs and plays that he wrote—his vaudeville and legitimate stage career and thru the inspiration he gave to others. It is the life story of a man, but it is also the life story of show business from the 1850's until today.

James Cagney plays the role of George M. Cohan, and advance reports say that he fits it in every detail. His dancing is perfect and his talking of songs rather than really singing them, which was always Cohan's way of putting over a number, makes the characterization perfect.

The cast is made up of a fine group of performers. Joan Leslie is cast as Mary, a naive girl who wants to get on the stage. She meets George M. Cohan and he gives her a chance to do a song and dance act. However, he decides she'd make a better wife than a vaudevillian, and she becomes Mrs. George M. Cohan. The Four Cohans, which in the Gay Nineties was famous in every town that was large enough to have a theatre, was made up of Jerry Cohan, played by Walter Huston; Nellie, his wife, played by Rosemary DeCamp; Josie, George's sister, portrayed by Jeanne Cagney, and George himself, Sam Harris, the theatrical producer who played a very important part in Cohan's life, is portrayed by Richard Whorf. Fay Tomperton, who was the country's heartthrob at the turn of the century, is played by alluring Irene Manning, whose charming soprano voice does full justice to Cohan's lovely tune, "Mary's A Grand Old Name."

All George M. Cohan's unforgettable melodies are played, including "The Yankee Doodle Boy," "Give My Regards to Broadway," and "Over There."

One of the picture's biggest thrills and what has been one of the most important days in George M. Cohan's life, was the Congressional Medal of Honor given him by President Roosevelt, in recognition of having written "Over There" and "You're A Grand Old Flag."

OHIO Mickey Rooney gets into legal troubles, finds himself "engaged" to two girls, and finally gets started for college after a series of hilarious predicaments in "Andy Hardy's Double Life," now playing at the Ohio theatre.

The picture opens on the eve of Andy's departure for Wainwright college. He sells his jalopy to a friend, who gets in an accident and Andy is held responsible as owner of the car. No sooner is he out of that trouble than he meets a flirtatious girl, who insists she construes his romantic behavior as a proposal of marriage. Also his father wants to go to the college with him and introduce him to the president, and Andy knows that will ruin him with the fellow.

Finally he learns that the girl who insists he proposed is a psychology student, doing so to watch his reactions, and his girl friend Polly Benedict is in on the plot.

He has a heart-to-heart talk with his father, who sees his point about meeting the college president. His troubles over, he sets forth gallily for college.
