Garden Will Provide Problem for Mr. District Attorney

A garden in which the farmers studiously avoid growing either flowers or vegetables piques the curiosity of "Mr. District Attorney" and leads him to the dissolution of a clever crime ring in the "Case of the Garden of Weeds" which he solves tonight on WIBA at 8:30.

Jay Jostyn plays the title role, with Len Doyle as Harrington and Vicki Vola as Miss Miller. Jerry Devine writes and directs; Peter Van Steeden is music director.

Songs selected by the men at the N. Y. State Maritime academy, Ft. Schuyler, N. Y., are the Victory Tunes to be played tonight on WIBA at 8 when Fred Waring's "Pleasure Time" program is heard.

Pam goes back to playing with dolls in "The Norths Buy A Doll" on their "Mr. and Mrs. North" program tonight on WIBA at 7. Pam persuades Jerry to bid for a ratty old suitcase at a hotel auction. The doll it contains attracts an assortment of criminals who make things lively for the Norths.

Romans Threw "Black Beans" Over Their Shoulders

WHEN the subject of beans comes up, my mind often goes back to the story of "Jack and the Beanstalk." The magic beans which Jack planted in that fairy tale were indeed amazing. Just how high they grew in one night, I never found out—but I suppose it was higher than the Empire State building!

In the real world, we have no beans of that sort, but there is something almost magical in the growth of a bean—or of any other seed. To think that a small white bean, placed in soil, will sprout and come up in a few days!

Thoughts of that kind were with me when I was an eight-year-old boy, and planted navy beans on a small plot of sandy soil. Soon afterward the little bean plants appeared above the ground, and I gazed at them with wonder. One day, when I returned to the house, someone asked me why I had been looking at the bean plants so hard. "I was trying to find out," I replied, "whether I could see them grow."

Garden plants are not to be seen moving as they grow, but we may notice a change from one day to the next, and we can see greater changes from week to week.

Navy beans are small white cousins of red kidney beans, and are classed in the same family. Navy

Europe toward the west. Their "place of origin" may have been northwest of India. In any case it appears that they took bean seeds with them in their travels.

The Greeks and the Romans planted beans, and used them for food. Bean customs sprang up here and there. At the time of a Roman feast, the head of each family washed his hands three times, then picked up some "black beans" and threw them over his shoulder. This action was repeated nine times, and was believed to be helpful to the whole family.

Most of the beans raised in our country belong to the kidney bean family. This family includes the so-called "wax beans" and "string beans," which are picked before the beans are ripe and which are eaten along with the pods.
