

Ration Problem Confronts "The Parker Family" On Air

New Congressman Will Discuss Subject: "What Are We Going To Do About The Pacific?"

An interesting and timely episode entitled "Baby Needs a Pair of Shoes," launches "The Parker Family" over WJZ Friday at 8:15 p. m. (EWT). In the story, Mrs. Parker promises to give her son, Richard, money and the No. 17 stamp to buy shoes to attend a dance. When she is called out of town she turns the house over to her young daughter, Nancy, who puts the ration books "in a safe place." Richard then cleans out a closet and a few drawers—and what happens to the ration stamps? It has a happy ending but a lot of conflict and laughs before this happens.

COURT DECISION AIDS WIVES WHO FOLLOW MATES

(AP)—A wife who quits her job to follow her husband to another place of residence is entitled to state unemployment compensation, a decision by Common Pleas Judge Louis J. Schneider maintained today. The decision, reversing the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation's board of review and upholding the findings of referee in the case, concerned a claim of $162 filed by Mrs. Alpha Weaver Moore, of Cincinnati. G. F. Oeler, plaintiff's attorney, said Mrs. Moore and her husband had been employed in Hamilton, O., but that when her husband moved to Cincinnati, she quit her job to be with him. Her claim, covering compensation for 18 weeks, was allowed by a referee but the BUC board of review reversed the ruling and Mrs. Moore appealed to the court.

LABOR SHORTAGE LOOMS UNLESS WOMEN ENROLL

Most Of 252,000 New Workers Needed By August Must Be Females

COLUMBUS, April 30—(UP)—Ohio war plant employers face a serious manpower shortage within the next four months unless the number of women registering for war jobs accelerates, a report by the U. S. Employment Service indicated today.

Wade Hammond, Ohio USES director, said Ohio employers must recruit more than 252,000 new workers—85 per cent of them women—by next August to replace men called to the armed forces. Presently the 81 full-time USES offices in Ohio have 77,516 workers registered for war jobs. Most of these, Hammond explained, are workers seeking higher wages or persons seeking to transfer from less essential work to war jobs. Of the total number now registered, however, only 31,616 are women as compared with 38,128 women registered in January, 22,816 in November and 51,192 in September, 1942.

Employment service spokesmen said the decline in women applicants is due to three factors: Many women believe it will affect husbands' draft status if they were to accept a job in war industry despite Washington's action wiping out dependency as a deferment factor; employers still prefer to hire men if possible, and the reservoir of skilled women workers has been exhausted, leaving only untrained and less desirable recruits. The number of persons registered with the USES is not a true index to Ohio's available labor resources, however, since many of the registrants merely are seeking better jobs and will not be allowed to shift because they live in stabilized areas.

Ultimately, Hammond said, Ohio employers must expect women to comprise at least 35 per cent of their working forces. Thirty-five per cent of the employees in British factories, 40 per cent of those in Nazi plants and 50 per cent of those in Russian industry are women, he said. The percentage of women workers in Ohio war plants now is 24.8 per cent, Hammond said, and has been increasing about one per cent a month. That rate will have to be accelerated, however, if the 35 per cent goal is to be attained by the end of 1943.

Even if the present ratio of women work registrants were maintained roughly one third—there will not be enough women to meet employment demands during the next four months. If the USES were able to recruit 54,000 women monthly, it still would fall short of the needed 200,000 women workers.
