COMMISSIONED GOAT IN NAVY GETS "GOAT" OF HIS ANNAPOLIS COUSIN

MOBILE, Ala., May 14 — (INS) — "All officers and men attached to the Mobile section base are to extend to Ensign B. G. Smith the privileges and courtesies due his high station," read an official navy order directing Mr. Billy Goat Smith to active duty at Fort Morgan unit of the U. S. Naval Section Base.

The only commissioned goat in the United States armed forces, Ensign Smith was transferred from the Choctaw Point unit with all the customary honors and official orders.

Ensign Smith is strictly forbidden from chewing all wearable clothes — especially the ones that have just been washed and hung on lines for drying, but is authorized to devour all the ordinary junk he desires.

None of the personnel stationed at the base will hazard a guess as to where Ensign Smith acquired his taste for tobacco, but all are in accord to the fact that he does quite well in "bumming" cigars. And he's not particular about whom he bums his "smokes" from either—whenever happens to be around is O. K.

Like any other veteran of the service, Ensign Smith boasts of a complete service record.

A brief biography of Ensign Smith goes like this:

Name: Billy Goat Smith.
 Age: Not certain.
 Birthplace: Backyard (which one has never been ascertained).
 Nationality: Slightly colored.
 Complexion: Mixed. Skin not visible.
 Education: Never started.
 Specialty: Trash eradicator.
