'Family Album,' Photographs of U.W. Professors, on Display

Current exhibitions in the main and theater galleries of the Wisconsin Union include the "Family Album" portraits of University of Wisconsin professors, and paintings by members of the university community.

The collection of faculty photographs was photographed last year by Harold N. Hone, Madison photographer, and first shown last May. It will eventually include all faculty members who have served on legal faculty for 15 years.

According to Robert Lamp-man, former Union president, who initiated the project, the collection is an approximate

way of saying:

Library Lists Summer Hours

Use of Branches Will Save Gas

Especially convenient this year with gas rationing and crowded buses creating a problem are the five neighborhood branches of the Madison Free library which are scattered throughout the city. The small but well-rounded collections are available to all adults and children who live within the city limits. The borrower's card issued at the main library may be used at any of the branches. Newcomers to the city will be interested in hours and locations of the branches. Announce Hours Summer hours for the five branches are as follows: Sixth ward branch, 1249 Williamson street, Monday, Wednesday, Friday, 3-6 p. m., 7-9 p. m., Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, 3-6 p. m.; Emerson and Franklin school branches, Monday and Thursday, 3-5 p. m., 6-9 p. m.; Longfellow and Lowell school branches, Tuesday and Friday, 3-5 p. m., 6-9 p. m. Children are requested to visit branches in the afternoons only unless accompanied by an adult borrower

Among the novels now available at the branches, the two most in demand have religious themes. "The Robe," by Lloyd C. Douglas, recounts the tale of the influence of Christ's robe on the people who touch it after the crucifixion. Franz Werfel's, "The Song of Bernadette," portrays the miracles which St. Bernadette performed at Lourdes. A novel of an entirely different nature, "Mrs. Parkington," the story of a fabulously rich old woman, worldly and indomitable, by Louis Bromfield, author of "The Rains Came," is rapidly gaining favor.

Travel Books Popular Very few books of travel have been written this year which are not of a war nature. Travel lovers, however, will find pleasure in "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," by Cornelia Otis Skinner, and "The Year of the Wild Boar," by Helen Mears, which are true pre-war travel books. The first is a clever, humorous story of a trip to Europe in the wild '20s of two 19-year-old girls. The latter is a portrayal of Japanese life and custom as Helen Mears found them in 1935, not from the Imperial hotel, but from a home in the truly Japanese section of Tokvo.

Books on the various theaters of war will also be found in the neighborhood branches. Among the titles are "Shooting the Russian War," by Margaret Bourke-White; "I Margaret Bourke-White; Saw the Fall of the Phillipines," by Carlos Romulo; "The Mountains Wait," by Theodor Broch; and "From Suez to Singapore," by Cecil Brown.
