McCormick, Frey Overlooked Mational League Warfare

Furnish Spark to Steady Reds

Cincinnati Tips Cubs; Yankees Nip Senators

The over-all performance of the Cincinnati Reds for most of this young season has been so generally inadequate that the baseball spotlight has failed to focus on two of the best individual performances of the year-those of Frank McCormick and Lonnie

McCormick, 30-year-old first baseman, set the National League on fire when he hit the big time for the first time. The 200-pound native of New York City led the circuit in seven hitting departnents in his first three years up. He was chosen the loop's most valuable player in 1940 after leading in hits for the third straight year. But for the past two seasons he had been in a dismal batting slump.

Frey's past performances have not been so brilliant. He started his career with Brooklyn, went to Chicago for a season and then to the Reds in the winter of 1938. Now he is his 11th season.

Lonnie reached .300 only once, his first year with Brooklyn, and his chief claim to fame, besides his excellent work at second base. was the fact that he pilfered 22 sacks to take down the league base stealing title in 1940. This the big first baseman who batted season. Frey seems likely to hit 340 for the Milwaukee Brewers the jackpot. Etten is Hero

Shoun divided the Reds' pitching chores, giving up 10 hits between them. Starr, who gave up nine before being relieved with two out in the eighth, was the winner.

The New York Yankees stretched their lead to three games over idle Washington Friday night by trimming the Athletics, 2-1, in a night game at Philadelphia. The loss dropped the A's into a threeway tie with Boston and Detroit for fourth place.

Barclay Gives Tips on Bridge

IT IS a virtual axiom of bridge that an opening bid opposite an opening bid will usually produce a game. Also many a time you can be just under a sound opener in general strength, and with a partner just lacking a sound original bid, yet will have enough if the hands fit fairly well or a few of the defenders' honors are located favorably for you. Consequently. if you have a hand of about that strength, it usually will pay to probe the situation rather than let the opponents play a hand at a bid of only one of a suit.

West led his diamond K to the A. The club J was finessed successfully—the really important break of the hand—and the club Q and A then furnished a discard of South's remaining diamond. The other high cards were marked with East by his original bid. He was thrown in by a heart to the K, and he was in a bad spot for a lead. He selected the diamond Q. which South ruffed, and was thrown in again with the heart A. Again properly hating to lead a
