Stars to Participate Tonight in $40,000,000 Bond Drive

LOUISE ERICKSON
WIBA at 8

The program opening the drive will be broadcast from the Hollywood Bowl tonight and will be heard over WIBA from 11 until midnight.

300 Tavernkeepers Quit in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (U.P.)—Feeling the pinch of manpower and liquor shortages, 300 Milwaukee tavernkeepers have failed to renew license applications for the period beginning July 1. Acting City Clerk Walter A. Klein revealed Tuesday. He said that the common council had approved 1,885 applications for licenses compared with more than 2,000 for the same period of 1942.

Uncle Ray's Corner

IN THE mountains of California there grow shrubs with very hard, woody stems. Early settlers called these shrubs "hard tack."

Today the same shrubs often go by the name of "small leaf mountain mahogany." The wood is not true mahogany, but it is one of several kinds of wood loosely classed with mahogany. The Philippine islands supply an excellent reddish wood known as "Philippine mahogany." Africa and Australia also have so-called "mahogany."

The true mahogany tree is a native of the New World. When Sir Walter Raleigh visited the West Indies in 1595, one of his sailing vessels was found to be in need of repair. A carpenter cut a mahogany tree on the island of Trinidad, and used the hard wood in fixing the vessel.

Close to a century later a British sea captain named Gibbons needed ballast for a ship which he was sailing back from the West Indies. He chose as ballast a number of mahogany logs.

The captain's brother, Dr. William Gibbons, saw the logs after the vessel returned to England.

"Will you let me use these logs to cut lumber for the new house I am going to build?" asked Dr. Gibbons.

"Certainly," replied the captain. Dr. Gibbons turned the logs over to carpenters, but soon they came to him and said, "We can't make lumber out of those logs! The wood is too hard!"

The logs would heva gone to waste if it had not been for a cabinetmaker named Wollaston. This man agreed to make some furniture for the doctor from the hard wood.

It was slow and painful work, but at last Wollaston produced a box to hold candles, also a bureau. People who saw the furniture were pleased by the beautiful grain. The cabinetmaker was allowed to use the rest of the logs to make furniture for other customers.

The world's present supply of true mahogany comes largely from Cuba, Venezuela, Mexico and Central America. Some of the finest wood has come from tall trees cut in Honduras. Mahogany trees sometimes reach a height of from 80 to 100 feet.
