RUSSIANS USED PICTURES TO CHANGE WAYS OF UZBEKS

YESTERDAY we were speaking about the voyage of the "Chelyuskin" across the Arctic ocean. After sailing from European Russia, it had almost reached Bering strait when it was caught in heavy pack ice. Later it sank, and the 128 persons aboard were left on the ice in the East Siberian sea.

Help came in the form of airplanes. A landing space was cleared in the pack ice, and the explorers were taken back to Russia by air.

The leader of the exploring party later made a statement about the northern parts of what is commonly known as "Siberia."

Here is a shortened account of what he said before the present war started:

"We Russians are building towns and ports in the Arctic. We are planting vegetables and setting up schools and hospitals in what the world used to look upon as a frozen waste.

"The cold need not keep people from living in this region. It seldom is colder than 40 below zero in the Arctic winter, and it gets that cold even in the Ukraine.

"The summer is cool and short, but there is sunshine which lasts 'day and night' and this helps the growth of plants. Beautiful flowers, such as violets and forget-me-nots, grow in the Arctic.

"Gold, silver, oil and coal exist under the frozen surface, and we are going to get those valuable minerals. People in our Arctic towns raise tomatoes, cucumbers, radishes and other vegetables in hot-houses, and we are testing crops of wheat and oats.

"Our new Arctic towns grow fast. One of them, named Igarka, has 12,000 people in winter and a summer population of 20,000. They have theaters, dance halls, kindergartens and clubs. Airplanes provide them with fast transport."

Besides using land inside the Arctic Circle, the Russians have done a great deal to educate people elsewhere in Russia—in Asia. These people are many in number and speak many languages. Some of them are "nomads." They live first in one place, then in another. They move about so their livestock can have new grazing lands.

From time to time, "campaigns" have been carried out to change certain customs. One tribe, for example, used more tobacco than was usual elsewhere. A picture campaign was started to show these people, known as Uzbeks, the harm which could come from smoking.
