Salute to Youth Will Honor Heroic U. S. Ground Crew

Army ground crew sergeants who rescued a bomber in Africa under the strafing of Messerschmitts will be saluted in the "Service Story of the Week" on Salute to Youth over WIBA at 6:30 tonight.

The heroes were Staff Sgt. Burnell Walker, Jackson, Miss., and Sgt. Perry Doty, Shreveport, La. Experiencing their first strafing by bombs and machine gun bullets from low-flying German planes, Walker and Doty braved the enemy fire to race across the field and save their pet bomber, the "Fat Emma."

Nadine Conner, Metropolitan Opera soprano, will contribute two solos, "I Never Mention Your Name" and "Lover Come Back to Me." Raymond Paige will lead the youth orchestra and male chorus in "Zing Went the Strings of My Heart," "Perfidia," and melodies from Gershwin's "Concerto in F."

Other attractions tonight:

6 p. m. — Fred Waring (WIBA) salutes Greenville, Miss., army flying school.

6:30 p. m. — American Melody Hour (WBBM): Conrad Thibault, Evelyn MacGregor, You'll Never Know, "Sunday, Monday, and Always," "The Way You Look Tonight," "Over the Top."

8:30 p. m. — Spotlight Bands (WENR): Richard Himber.

11:05 p. m. — Roy Shield and Co. (WIBA): "It Ain't Necessarily So," "Allah's Holiday," "People Will Say We're in Love," "At Sundown."

12 p. m. — Music You Want (WENR): portions of Beethoven's fifth piano concerto, "Coriolan" overture, Strauss' "Die Fleidermaus" overture.

Discussion
7 p. m. — University Forum (WHA): "What Will History Say of Mussolini?"

Drama
8 p. m. — Famous Jury Trials

Jefferson Fair Race Entries Set Record

JEFFERSON — Horses from six states and Canada have been entered in the two-day race meet to be held in conjunction with the Jefferson county fair here Thursday through Sunday. Racing dates are Saturday and Sunday with four races each day for purses of $300 for each event.

A total of 99 horses, constituting a record for the 91-year-old fair, have been entered this year according to the list released by the fair manager, Horace L. Durr.

BANDING OF BIRDS COMMON DURING PRESENT CENTURY

he studied these birds: "The birds made their homes in a shed which was open on one side. In general they returned to their nests of the year before. One pair, which was closely watched, came back to the same nest for several seasons.

"One year, however, the nest which that pair had been using was walled up with mud. In the fall, the sealed entrance to the nest was broken open, and the remains of a swallow were found inside. It appears that one of the owners of the nest had died, and had been sealed in so no effort to use the same nest would be made the next year."

Important facts about birding have been learned through marking. This custom has become widespread only during the present century, but there are records of it going back more than two centuries.

During or about the year 1706, a metal ring was placed on the leg of a heron in Turkey. In 1710 this heron was captured in Germany, and the metal ring showed that the heron was the same one which had been marked in Turkey.

In later times marks were made on feathers with indelible ink or paint, or bits of wire or colored yarn were twisted around the legs. In this way a few persons were able to make sure that the same birds came back to certain nests season after season.

John J. Audubon, famous painter of birds, placed silver wires on common phoebes, and proved that some of them kept breeding in the same district. Audubon lived near Philadelphia during his young manhood. Later he spent much of his time studying birds in Kentucky and other states west of Pennsylvania.

Bird banding has become a common thing on this continent, thanks largely to government help. Hundreds of thousands of birds have been banded in the United States and Canada.
