Building Of New Alaskan Road Told In Sigma Hit

New Attraction Scheduled To Open Wednesday; Rollicking Comedy Scheduled At The Drive In

Richard Arlen and Jean Parker face tense moments and tender ones together in the exciting action film about the building of the great road uniting Alaska and Canada "Alaska Highway" due to open Wednesday at the Sigma. Also opening will be "Follies Girl." Ending Tuesday will be "Next of Kin" and "Mister Big."

"Chatterbox" a rollicking comedy, will commence an engagement at the Drive In theatre on Wednesday. Joe E. Brown and Judy Canova furnish the laughs. "Palm Beach Story" will show thru Tuesday.

The two attractions currently at the Quilna are among the best comedies made in Hollywood in many months. "Two Senoritas From Chicago," features lovely Jinx Falkenburg and funny talking Jean Davis. "Let's Have Fun" which completes the program, stars Bert Gordon.

An outstanding picture and one of the best ever in Lima is what they are saying about "This is the Army," current Ohio picture. The Irving Berlin production is packed with music and stars. In the cast are Lt. Ronald Reagan, Joan Leslie and Kate Smith.

Startling discoveries await Robert Lowery and Gale Storm when they follow Veda Ann Borg to a midnight rendezvous in "Revenge of the Zombies," at the Lyric. Also at the Lyric is "Sarong Girl," with Ann Corio, Tim Ryan and Johnny "Scat" Davis.

Tuesday and Wednesday will be the final days for the two State pictures, "White Savage," in beautiful technicolor, stars Maria Montez and Jon Hall. "Assignment in Brittany," a fine war picture, stars Pierre Aumont.

SIGMA
Newspaper headline writers probably didn't realize it at the time, but they were giving Hollywood a story idea when they screamed news about the Alaska Highway. One producing unit in the cinema capital in particular, headed by William Pine and William Thomas, makes a pretty consistent practice of basing movie stories on headline news.

"Alaska Highway," the picture starring Richard Arlen and Jean Parker, which bows into the Sigma theatre Wednesday, is the direct result of public interest in that greatest of all wartime engineering feats — the construction of a highway linking Alaska with Canada. In record-breaking time. According to all reports, Director Charles Barton found that out recently when he was called on to pick the twenty most beautiful dancing girls in Hollywood for roles in his comedy, "Let's Have Fun," at the Quilna theatre.

The dancing lovelies were needed for stage-musical show numbers along with Margaret Lindsay, John Paul and Bert Gordon, the "Mad Russian" of screen and radio.

"Picking the twenty best beauties from a throng of one hundred was as easy as it was pleasant," Director Barton declared. "The tough part of the job was having to turn down the rest of the girls, and still not discouraging them."

Jinx Falkenburg, currently appearing at the Quilna theatre in Columbia's "Two Senoritas from Chicago," copied her brother's college fad of wearing cowboy boots instead of galoshes when it rains. That's what the students do at the University of Arizona and Jinx has introduced the style to Hollywood.

"Sarong Girl," the musical comedy at the Lyric theatre, is composed of many ingredients which add up to really superior entertainment. There are girls galore; there is plenty of catchy music, both vocal and instrumental; there is a highly amusing comedy story; there is an excellent cast, including ing a preponderance of comedians — and there is Ann Corio.

It was not without good reason that the luscious Miss Corio was known for a good many years as "the loveliest lady of burlesque."

In the picture her natural charms are supplemented by an excellent performance in the starring role, furnishing definite promise of a successful career as a screen player. The cast also includes the noted comedy team of Tim & Irene (Ryan); the no-less-capable colored comedian, Manton Moreland; Bill Henry and Damian O'Flynn as the other two points of a romantic triangle with Miss Corio; Johnny "Scat" Davis to make music, at the head of his band and otherwise; Henry Kolker, Mary Gordon, Betty Blythe and other players.

The merry story begins when the burlesque show of which Ann is the star is closed by a reformer, and she promptly begins to exercise her wiles on the son of the upright citizen. After this, anything can happen.

BOYS TRY TO PREVENT REOPENING OF SCHOOL
ENGLEWOOD, Colo., Aug. 31.—(UP)—When a gang of young boys here vowed not to return to school this fall, they really meant it.

The boys laid siege yesterday to the Englewood grammar school, breaking 25 windows and inflicting other damage to the building and shouting "now we won't have to go back."

Today a squad of police kept a watchful eye in the building while new windows were put in.
