Ross Asks Clergy to Talk War Fund

Frank A. Ross, Madison, president of the Wisconsin War Fund, today asked Wisconsin clergymen to talk on the coming War Fund campaign the Sunday before it begins.

In letters to the clergymen Ross said that the appeal was issued in behalf of the young men and women from each congregation who are in service. He suggested that each clergyman announce the date of the opening of the campaign in his county and that he give some information about the National War Fund, with which the Wisconsin War Fund is affiliated. The fund raises money for the USO and 21 other war relief organizations.

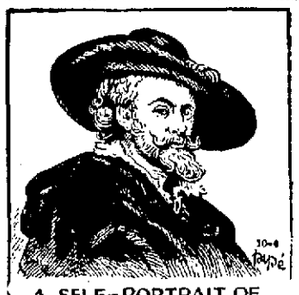
Rubens Repaired Paintings Damaged On Way to Spain

In the early spring of the year 1603, a young man left northern Italy, bound for Madrid, Spain. If you had been alive then, and had asked someone about this young man, the reply might have been:



A SELF-PORTRAIT OF PETER PAUL RUBENS.

"He is the court painter in the palace of the duke of Mantua. We call him 'the Fleming,' because he was born in Flanders. His name is Peter Paul Rubens, and he studied art in Antwerp before coming to Italy.

"Now he is on his way to take presents from the duke to the king of Spain. The presents include a number of valuable paintings."

Rubens was 26 years old at that time. It was an honor to serve as ambassador for the duke of Mantua, and he did his best to deserve it, but during the long, tiresome journey, the rain kept falling and falling. Twenty days were rainy!

With such ill fortune, it is little wonder that the paintings were damaged. Two of them were ruined altogether!

What could the young man do? He could use a brush!

With fine skill, he retouched the damaged pictures, and painted new ones to replace the two which had been ruined. He said nothing about this when he reached his journey's end, and the Spanish king, Philip III, was delighted by all the paintings, little dreaming what the young artist had done to them.

While in Madrid, Reubens painted portraits of several Spanish nobles. Then he returned to Italy. News of his mother's serious illness caused him to make a trip to Antwerp. His mother died before he reached her bedside, but he decided to stay in Antwerp.

During the 32 years which followed, he made Antwerp his headquarters, but from time to time he visited foreign countries. He took part in signing a peace treaty in London, and while there painted the picture called "Peace and War," which Englishmen are proud to have in their National Gallery. He went to Paris and helped decorate a palace for the French queen.

A famous picture by Rubens is the "Descent from the Cross." All told, he took part in making more than 3,000 pictures, but many of these were painted in large measure by the pupils who gathered around him in Antwerp. One of his pupils was the famous Anthony Van Dyck.
