Mystery And Comedy Offered In Quilna's Double Feature

"Appointment in Berlin," a spy picture, as well as "Dangerous Blondes," a mystery-comedy combine, currently are being featured on the Quilna screen.

At the Sigma, "The Sky's the Limit," starring Fred Astaire and Joan Leslie, new dance team, and thrill-packed "Adventure in Iraq," are being shown.

Now showing at the State theatre is the famed "This is the Army," in which Irving Berlin has done some of his greatest of great work.

'Chetniks," telling of the thrilling guerrilla warfare in the Balkans, now of so much trouble to the Axis, and the Blondie and Dagwood film, "It's a Great Life," are being featured at the Lyric.

Fred MacMurray and Alice Faye star in the interesting film, "Little Old New York," at the Drive In theatre.

The Ohio's "I Dood It," is a vehicle for plenty of laughs from Red Skelton's antics and plenty of entertainment from Eleanor Powell.

QUILNA

It is almost an anomaly that the most dangerous profession of actual warfare has become the most popular vicarious one in Hollywood.

That profession is espionage, and today there isn't a dramatic actor or actress, worthy of the name, who isn't clamoring to play a screen spy.

The tremendous dramatic elasticity of such a role is a challenge to their artistic abilities; but even more appealing is the imposing list of stars who have achieved cinematic heights in spy roles.

In the espionage drama, "Appointment in Berlin," which is now playing at the Quilna theatre, debonair George Sanders realizes this unholy ambition. In one of his most important roles to date, that of a British agent opposite the lovely Marguerite Chapman, Sanders gets a full opportunity to run the melodramatic gamut of a spy role.

It was the enigmatic Greta Garbo who first proved the professional equation that "spy roles make stars." As the glamorous "Mata Hari" of World War I, Garbo immortalized herself as well as this famous international spy.

"Dangerous Blondes" also is showing.

LYRIC

Louis King had a problem virtually unheard of in Hollywood on his hands while directing Philip Dorn and John Shepperd in "Chetniks!" The Fighting Guerrillas.

In the action-packed picture at the Lyric theatre, Dorn is featured as the guerrilla leader and Sheppard as his trusty lieutenant. As a result, the two appeared together almost from first reel to the last.

But instead of the usual scene-stealing that develops when two prominent leading men team up, both Dorn and Sheppard played their parts almost with reticence. They were underplaying to such an extent that King had to take time out to remind them that, after all, they were portraying the leaders of fighting men living dangerously in exciting times.

Dorn and Sheppard assured the director that they were aware of it. But they didn't tell him why they were underplaying. The truth is that Dorn and Sheppard are friends of long standing and both were making doubly sure that they weren't pilfering scenes from one another.

Their friendship dates back to a few years ago, when Dorn and Sheppard were vying for a key role in "Escape." Sheppard went out of his way to help Dorn in his screen test. Then, after seeing a print of it, he told the studio that Dorn was made to order for the role.

"It's a Great Life" also is on the bill.

SIGMA

"Adventure in Iraq," an unusual film that packs both suspense and thrills from start to finish, is playing at the Sigma theatre. The new picture is the exciting story of a fighting American pilot, fresh from daring exploits with the Flying Tigers, who makes a forced landing in the heart of a wild country where devil-worshipping natives and their Shiek are Nazi hirelings.

His singlehanded efforts to break the enemy toe-hold and set the stage for the entry of American bombing squadrons make for exciting drama.

"Adventure in Iraq," directed by D. Ross Lederman, features John Loder, Ruth Ford, Warren Douglas and Paul Cavanagh. Others in the cast include Peggy Carson, Bill Crago, Martin Garralaga and Bill Edwards. Screen play for the film was written by George R. Bilson and Robert E. Kent from the play by William Archer.

"The Sky's the limit," is a co-feature.

HALIFAX WARNS AGAINST WAR OVEROPTIMISM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 — The Germans, badly battered by Anglo-American bombings and reeling from Russian advances on the eastern front, still are so well organized, in the opinion of Viscount Halifax, that they may be able to prolong the war indefinitely.

Halifa, British ambassador to the United States who just returned from England, told a press conference last night Germany must either recruit more manpower to police her subjugated areas or withdraw her armies to the vital job of defending the Reich.

The war in Europe, the ambassador said, has reached the point where "anything may happen." He cautioned against overoptimism, however, and urged complete disarmament of the enemy at the war's end.

ANNIVERSARY IS CELEBRATED BY LEIPSIC CHURCH

(Lima News Bureau)

LEIPSIC, Nov. 2—Members of the congregation of First Lutheran church of Leipsic celebrated the 75th anniversary of the founding of the church with special services Sunday here.

Dr. Rees Edgar Tulloss, president of Wittenberg college at Springfield, delivered the principal address during the 10:30 a. m. worship service. A highlight of the celebration was the presence of Charles Loffler and Mrs. Sarah Hummon, the first two persons to be baptised in the church.

This was the first church established in Leipsic and it was founded in 1868 under Rev. George Hammer who served the congregation until 1871. Since his pastorate there have been 17 ministers filling the pupit including the present pastor, Rev. E. A. Lehman.

BADOGLIO FAILS IN EFFORT TO FORM COALITION

NAPLES, Nov. 2 — (INS) — Marshal Pietro Badoglio, rebuffed by Count Carlo Sforza, Benedetto Croce and Baron Ciewes Redine in the first round of a series of political confabs, cut short a projected two-day stay in Naples by 24-hours today to fly to the headquarters of King Victor Emanuele and report that his efforts to create a coalition government are near failure.

A few hours before his departure, the Italian premier admitted exclusively to International News Service that "things do not look good or promising."

One of his closest advisors, expanding that crisp phrase, revealed that the three bigwigs on whom Badoglio had counted so heavily to help broaden the wartime government had been unanimous in demanding abdication of the King as the price for their support.

Ernie Pyle's Saga Offered For Dramatization Tuesday

"Here Is Your War," the first book by America's "greatest letter writer" and war correspondent, Ernie Pyle, will be dramatized for radio listeners on "Words at War" series Tuesday (WEAF, 10:30 p. m., EST) one week after its publication. "Here Is Your War," adapted for radio by Gerald Holland of the Script Division, is the intimate story of our fighting forces' big campaign, the Battle of Africa.

"The Big Sleep," Raymond Chandler's fantastic story of jealousy, blackmail and murder, will be dramatized on "The Mystery Theatre" with Alice Goodkin and Anna Karen in leading roles over WEAF on Tuesday at 8 p. m., EST.

It was a quest for good spaghetti like he used to get in Brooklyn that led Quentin Reynolds into an exciting tank action in Salerno. The front line reporter on "Salute to Youth" will tell the story with the aid of a cast of actors Tuesday, WEAF, 6:30 p. m., EST).

How Steve Wilson, managing editor of The Illustrated Press, with only minutes to spare, saves a condemned man from the electric chair, and catches the real culprit, will be dramatized on "Big Town" Tuesday, 7 p. m., EST over WABC in an episode entitled "Stroke of Twelve." Wilson's "girl Friday," Lorelei Kilbourne, helps him solve the murder.

Charles Coburn, filmdom's busiest "financier," pays a visit to "Duffy's" Tuesday to render professional services to Archie's flagging exchequer, during the broadcast at 7:30 p. m., EST, over WJZ. The bluff character actor has been engaged by Archie to give a transfusion to the firm's foundering fiduciary, a monetary anemia caused by till-tapping.
