TRAFFIC DEATH TOLLS CHECKED

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 25—(AP)
— Nearly 12 of every 100,000
Ohioans were killed in traffic accidents last year, a survey by the State Highway Department indicated today.

The report was compiled from statistics in Harry E Neal's traffic and safety division and issued in connection with the 1943 all-Olio traffic safety contest.

The highway department said only Ashland of the state's eligible communities failed to enroll in this year's safety contest, which represents about 75 per cent of the state's 7,500,000 residents. March 15 is the contest deadline for reporting deaths and accidents.

Winning towns will be awarded plaques in April.
