

Action, Hardships Depicted In "Sahara," Lyric Film

Action and hardships in the North African desert are depicted in "Sahara" which is now showing at the Lyric theatre along with "Dangerous Blondes." Humphrey Bogart and "Lulabelle," the tank, portray the leading roles.

Kay Kyser and his orchestra are featured in "Around the World" now at the Ohio theatre.

"Lifeboat" is the tense drama offered on the screen of the Quilna film house. The life of a war correspondent and author is dramatically told in "Jack London" now co-billed with "Week-End Pass" at the Sigma.

State movie fans are now offered the opportunity to see "Destination Tokyo," one of the most revealing films yet to come out of the war. Co-featured is "She's For Me."

How an Axis spy message which Mischa Auer unwittingly carries from China to Egypt gets him and Kay Kyser into a flock of trouble, is the farcical basis of Kay Kyser's newest musical offering "Around the World," now at the Ohio.

The incident occurs during a globe circling tour of American Army bases in foreign countries by the Kyser troupe, in the course of which the boys put on five separate and colorful camp shows for their soldier audiences.

Nine new song hits by Jimmy McHugh and Harold Adamson and the current A-trial tune, "Walking Myself Home" are woven into the picture, which features such features as Joan Davis, Marcie McGuire and Georgia Carroll in the frame-line leads.

There are only nine roles in the picture. Not one is a bit. All nine are dramatic and all nine are important to the story.

Humphrey Bogart whose sensational performance in "Casablanca" won the acclaim of motion picture fans throughout the land, comes along now with a highly witty performance in "Sahara," which is current at the Lyric theatre and in which Bogart delivers a superb performance as a two-fisted, tough army sergeant. Certainly this portrayal will go into Hollywood records as one of the outstanding performances in the vivid screen career of this very vivid motion picture personality.

Co-featured is "Dangerous Blondes" which is a story of a woman who is captured by a German spy and taken to a concentration camp. The picture is a story of a woman who is captured by a German spy and taken to a concentration camp.
