

Cecil B. DeMille Presents "The Hard Way" On Monday

Cecil B. DeMille will present Miriam Hopkins, Franchot Tone and Chester Morris in the emotional drama, "The Hard Way," to be presented Monday at 8 p. m., EST over WABC.

Miriam Hopkins as Helen Chernin, plays the role of an ambitious and ruthless woman determined to escape the sordid existence of a coal mining town. Her younger sister, Katherine who is beautiful and talented becomes the pawn in her scheme.

One of America's favorite comedians, Joe E. Brown, who already has made three trips abroad to entertain soldiers on the battle front, tells of the adventures of less famous overseas entertainers in "G. I. Circuit," the "Calvacade of America" drama Monday over WEA at 7 p. m., EST. Co-starred is Ann Sothern.

Courageous PT boat crews, of the U. S. Navy's deadly hit-and-run Mosquito Fleet, will be heard on Vox Pop when Parks Johnson and Warren Hull visit the Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron Training Center, Melville, R. I., Monday at 7 p. m., EST, over WABC.

Ethel Merman, whose radio guest appearances are rare enough to be practically non-existent, will accept Ed Sullivan's bid to guest on Ed Sullivan Presents Monday, 6:15 p. m., EST, over WABC.

Miss Merman, one of Broadway's most popular musical comedy stars, will tell Ed all about her new show when she broadcasts with him from the Club 21 where the show originates.

Lyric Offers Timely Film, "Doughboys In Ireland"

"Doughboys in Ireland," a timely film in view of the current upset in and about old Eire, is now showing at the Lyric theatre. Co-featured in the film based on a juke-box hit and bearing its title of "Pistol Packin' Mama."

The Marines have landed in Lima and the audiences at the Ohio where "Gung Ho" and "Battle of Tarawa" are now playing are well in hand.

One of the most suspense-packed stories ever written or portrayed on the screen is "Jane Eyre" which is now offered at the Quilna.

Comedy is running riot at the Sigma where "Miracle of Morgan's Creek" and "Passport to Destiny" are now co-featured.

"Girl Crazy" and "City That Stopped Hitler" are now current at the State film house.

SIGNA
As long as Betty Hutton plays unsophisticated wage-earning girls, which she's been doing ever since movies got her, she will wear bangs.

Experiments made on Betty by the hairdressing department show that wearing her hair any other way makes her look sophisticated, and as long as she gets parts like her present one in "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek," Betty will wear bangs. In this film, which is showing at the Sigma theatre with Eddie Bracken as her co-star, Betty plays a small-town girl who works in a music store, and her utter lack of world-wisdom gets her into the trouble which prompts the plot.

This screen unsophistication in which Betty seems best is quite interesting, too, inasmuch as the blonde blitz started making her way in the entertainment world when she was fifteen, and spent the subsequent five years taking care of herself in big cities.

Co-billed is "Passport to Destiny."

JULINA
The greatest love story of all time is playing on the screen of Quilna theatre and it is to be reported at once that "Jane Eyre," amazingly popular as it has been with millions of readers, is destined to far surpass that success as a motion picture.

Since Charlotte Bronte's celebrated romance was first published it has appeared in dozens of editions and has been a continuous best-seller. Now, on the screen, it attains new stature and greatness and is a proud newcomer to the long list of cinematic achievements.

In the leading roles of Edward Rochester and Jane—roles, it seems, that they were destined to play—are two of the screen's outstanding stars, Orson Welles and Joan Fontaine. Despite the acclaim that has greeted previous performances of these players, in "Jane Eyre" each reaches a milestone in their brilliant careers.
