

Dancing Sensation Starred In Coming Quilna Film

Belita, lovely and lively dancing-skating sensation, is starred in "Lady, Let's Dance," coming to the Quilna theatre Friday evening with "Million Dollar Kid." Showing for the last time Friday is "Jane Eyre," starring Orson Welles and Joan Fontaine.

Moving into the Ohio theatre Friday is "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves," featuring Maria Montez, Jon Hall and Turhan Bey. Now offered is "Gung Ho."

The Lyric current attractions are the shiver-inducer, "Voodoo Man," starring Bela Lugosi, and "Raiders of Red Gap."

"Miracle of Morgan's Creek" comedy starring Eddie Bracken and Betty Hutton, and "Passport to Destiny," continue at the Sigma.

"Tarzan's Desert Mystery" is currently offered at the State theatre with Johnny Weissmuller, along with "So's Your Uncle."

Belita, hailed as the country's outstanding figure skater, and now to be revealed as equally skilled as a dancer, opens an engagement at the Quilna theatre on Friday evening as the star of the dazzling Monogram musical extravaganza, "Lady, Let's Dance."

James Ellison plays the leading male role, and Belita's supporting cast also includes the comedy skating team of Frick & Frack, Walter Catlett, Lucien Littlefield, Maurice St. Clair, Emmet Vogan, Harry Harvey, Jack Rice, Barbara Woodell and Eugene Mikeler. Music is supplied by the orchestras of Henry Busse, Mitch Ayres, Eddie LeBaron and Lou Bring, and songs and production numbers were written by Dave Oppenheim and Ted Grouya. Scott R. Dunlap produced, with Frank Woodruff as director. The original story was adapted and Bradbury Foots was filmed for the screen by Peter Milne and Paul Gerard Smith.

LYRIC

Unlike most horror films, "Voodoo Man" now at the Lyric theatre has no let-up of suspense, nor any comedy interludes to break the tension.

Monogram producers Sam Katzman and Jack Dietz have served up a gruesome film that never gives the audience a chance to relax from the time it starts until the chilling climax.

Starred in the picture is Bela Lugosi, screenom's Number One fiend. Featured is John Carradine, equally black-hearted villain of many outstanding thrill pictures, and the supporting cast also includes George Zucco, Wanda McKay, Louise Currie, Michael Ames and Ellen Hall.

STATE

Some of America's most savage and rugged scenery, both sandy desert and towering mountain in variety, was filmed in "Tarzan's Desert Mystery," now at the State.

In the new adventure, the hero has to leave his beloved jungle and undertake a mission of desperate hazard amid desert sands and arid mountains. This type of scenic background was found by location scouts in spots never before used for movie backdrops.

True, the rugged High Sierra country where "Gunga Din" was filmed and the desert sand dunes near Yuma, Arizona, where "Beau Geste" was made would have

JUVENILE CRIME RISES IN WAR-AFFECTED AREAS

CHICAGO, March 23.—(UP)—Increasing youth delinquency, especially in areas suffering from disruptive war influences, has been noted in a study by the American Public Welfare Assn and the Council of State Governments.

Gangs of vandalistic boys and sexually promiscuous girls are products of wartime conditions of crowding, neglect and general unrest, the survey stated.

The U. S. children's bureau estimated that in 1942 the number of boys appearing in juvenile courts increased 8 per cent over 1941, while the number of girls increased 31 per cent.

Alabama, Colorado, Indiana and Utah have extended programs of child welfare consultants, and Tennessee has concentrated especially on army camp areas, the survey showed. Louisiana has aided district judges with juvenile probation officers, and Indiana has organized traveling mental hygiene clinics.

Enforcement of prohibition of liquor sales to minors has been instituted in many states. The survey also revealed recreation provisions have been undertaken by Washington, Massachusetts and Minnesota.

By ANN STEVICK
More brown rice may be an incidental result of the new low prices on rough rice to millers.

The main purpose of the action is to enable millers to carry on without a rise in prices of milled rice to consumers. Large civilian demands and government purchases have reduced the supply until prices of rough rice to millers have been soaring.

With these high prices, the millers could not afford to sell brown rice, which has a lower retail ceiling price than white. The War Food Administration has tried to increase consumption of brown rice, and to find a satisfactory way of enriching white rice. They have found eating and cooking habits hard to change. People prefer white rice, and they are apt to cook it in a lot of water and throw out the vitamins with the water.

Another objection to brown rice, particularly for export, has been that its high oil content makes it turn rancid and become bug-infested more rapidly. A

LETTERS FROM HOME ARE "SECRET WEAPONS"

RANDOLPH FIELD, Tex., Mar. 23.—(INS)—Take it from fighter pilots who have flown 50, 60, 70 and, in some cases, more than 100 combat missions against the Germans and Japanese—a letter from home is frequently determined whether a pilot will have a good or bad German or Jap-hunting day.

Combat veterans returned to Randolph Field's Central Instructors' school invariably point out that they could tell how things were going to go on almost any given day by the mail that did, or didn't get thru to them, while they fought in North Africa, in Sicily, on Attu or in the South Pacific. One of them, 1st Lt. Justin O. Henley, a veteran of the North African and Sicilian campaign, summed it up this way:

"If you had mail just before a mission, you felt great. You went looking for trouble and you were very sure of yourself. If you didn't, you felt sluggish and you didn't as sure of your plane, your guns and yourself."
