Strange Medley Of Fighting In Fearsome Jungles Takes On Very Definite Pattern For Future

> By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Associated Press War Analyst)

The strange medley of fighting in the fearsome jungles of Burma is taking on a very definite pattern in which we can recognize planned and coordinated spadework for the ultimate amphibious invasion of that country when we hit the final stretch of trail for Tokyo.

It is Southeastern Asia's counterpart of the Allied preparatory work in the Pacific. We have a fine example of the latter in today's news of the trio of attacks on important Japanese bases—the bombardment of the island of Palau, only  $550\,\mathrm{c}$ miles from the Philippines, by an to Ledo on the northwestern bor-American fleet; MacArthur's first der of Burma. aerial attack on the great enemy out of that region we must have the important rail-head of Myit-Hollandia, an enemy stronghold on kyina. So Stilwell is pushing

The Allied offensive is aimed at driving the enemy out of the northern tip of Burma so that land communications with China 31 can be reestablished. That communication was cut when we lost the Burma road. We now want to run a highway reross Burma so as to join the Chinese end of the Burma road and the new road
