Browy, Reporter No More, Quits Poker, Writes Skat

When Calmer Browy was a Madison newspaper reporter he played poker with "the boys." Now that he is an examiner with the Wisconsin public service commission, Browy plays skat, has written a book "Skat for Beginners," and is trying to convert even his poker-playing friends to this cross between the Italian game of tarots and the German-Slavic game of schafkopf.

as he describes it, there are only three players needed and when there are four the dealer sits out his deal. If you would learn a game which the author says has "added much to his enjoyment of life," if you are curious about guckers, schneider and schwarz, the answer is in "Skat for Beginners." If you have any questions about the game, the author offers to answer them by mail. He is chairman of the skat committee of the Madison Elks and member of the Madison committee of the Wisconsin Skat League and North American Skat League.

Ban in Boston Spurts Sales

By SALLY MIRLISS (United Press Staff Correspondent) BOSTON—By-line of success in the literary world is the righteous "Banned in Boston," for nothing stimulates sales quite so much as Boston's refusal to censure them.

ture "Defender of Czestochowa"—"Remove dialogue, . . . damned! . . . damn. . . in part 10. Boston's puritanical taint has enveloped at various times: Giovanni Boccaccio for the "Decameron," Voltaire for "Candide," Walt Whitman for "Leaves of Grass," Gabriel D'Annunzio for "The Triumph of Death," Ernest Hemingway for "The Sun Also Rises," Sinclair Lewis for "Elmer Gantry," Aldous Huxley for "Antic Hay," Upton Sinclair for "Oil," Sherwood Anderson for "Dark Laughter," and Eugene O'Neill for "Strange Interlude."

Books Stress Gifts to U. S.

In proclaiming today, May 21, "I Am an American Day," Pres. Roosevelt called attention to the fact that "our nation has been enriched both spiritually and materially by the naturalization of many thousands of foreign-born men and women, and by the coming of age of great numbers of our youth who have thereby achieved the full stature of citizenship." Evidence of the contribution of foreign-born Americans to national culture and progress is plentiful, a survey of books at the Madison Free library reveals. For example, a pamphlet issued by the Common Council of American Unity states that some 2,495 notable Americans of foreign birth were listed in "Who's Who in America, 1938-1939." An analysis of later issues would undoubtedly show the addition of other distinguished names to the list.

Books Stress Gifts to U. S.

Foreign-Born Give Us Much. American literature is represented by many writers of foreign birth, and the shelves of the city library are well stocked with their works. Of the large number of foreign-born poets, dramatists, novelists, and writers on contemporary problems, the following are representative: British West Indies, Claude McKay; England, Charles Rann Kennedy, Lewis Brown John W. Vandercook; Germany, Thomas Mann; Ireland, Padraic Colum; Lithuania, Samuel Hofenstein; Yugoslavia, Louis Adamic. Author-explorers Carverth Wells and Viljalmar Stefansson were born in England and Canada respectively, and among foreign-born editors is S. S. McClure, a Scotman born in Ireland.

In the field of music, the United States owes much to her adopted sons and daughters: as a selected list of operatic singers, conductors, composers and instrumental virtuosos with their place of birth indicates: Australia, Percy Grainger; Austria, Fritz Kreisler; Denmark, Lauritz Melchior; England, Leopold Stokowski; France, Lily Pons; Germany, Frederick Stock; Hungary, Eugene Ormandy; Ireland, John McCormack; Italy, Arturo Toscanini, Ezio Pinza; Rumania, Alma Gluck; Russia, Jascha Heifetz, Andre Kostalanez, Sergei Koussevitzky.

Wests to Have Concert Today

Approximately 200 West high school pupils were to participate in the joint concert of the school's concert orchestra and band and a cappella choir at 3 p. m. today in the school auditorium. The 56-piece concert orchestra will play five numbers and the 81-piece concert band five, including selections from "Oklahoma."
