

WEEK-END FILMS DELVE IN MULTIPLE MODES OF LIFE

WIDE VARIETY IS OFFERED ON LOCAL SILVER SCREENS

Fields of medicine and psychiatry are displayed on the local screens this Saturday. Revolving within the circle of movies will be pictures concerning show business, mystery, juvenile delinquency, labor shortage and ordinary everyday happenings. Many re-releases will be shown over the week-end.

Romance, comedy and drama form the triple theme of "Show Business," Eddie Cantor's sparkling new film musical now playing at the Ohio theatre. This truly great saga covering some 30-odd years of theatrical life in many varying aspects stars Cantor with George Murphy and Joan Davis and many others.

Almost unsolvable is the case that Warner Baxter as Dr. Ordway, the Crime Doctor, attempts to solve in his latest picture, "Crime Doctor's Strangest Case." "Crime Doctor's Strangest Case" now playing at the Quilna theatre with another hit "There's Something About a Soldier."

Romantic villains are coming back as Zachary Scott, new screen find, makes his bow in the exciting new film, "Mask of Dimitrios" now showing at the Sigma theatre.

He is co-starring with Faye Emerson, Sydney Greenstreet, Peter Lorre and Victor Francen.

Many people are hoping and praying for the war to end soon for two reasons, so that their loved ones will come home and so they might get back their domestic help they lost at the beginning of the war. You'll laugh at the problem which seems so serious to some people when you see "Make Your Own Bed" currently featured at the State theatre with "Three Men in White."

Making a break from a German concentration camp which is very well guarded could very well present a problem which one might say would be unfathomable but George Montgomery finds a way

SOLDIER AND GIRL, THEME OF QUILNA THEATRE YARN

There's something about the love story in the picture "There's Something About a Soldier," playing at the Quilna theatre, that only a soldier and his sweetheart can tell. Here it's done humanly.

ANYTHING FOR METEK
TEWKSBURY, MASS., Aug. 5 (UP)—Inscription on the headstone of Lt. William Kitteredge, 92, in the Old Center Burying Ground:

"He's gone at length, how many whom he did generously relieve. But O how shocking he expires. Amidst the flames of raging fire. Yet all who sleep in Christ are blest. Whatever way they are undressed."

Twenty-six thousand people could stand at one time under the roof of St. Paul's Cathedral, London.

believably and tenderly by Tom Neal and Evelyn Keyes. It's not only something exciting in entertainment, it's different, alive, vital with current interest.

You'll thrill with pride in American youth; you'll be deeply moved by the soldier who had the courage to face his girl and his country when he was disgraced, degraded and dishonored; you'll single with admiration and sympathy for the girl who loved him.

SOLDIERS HELD IN THEFT
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 5—(AP)—Two Ft. Benning, Ga., paratroopers were held by a U. S. commissioner today in default of $1,500 bond each after they were arraigned on a charge of driving an automobile stolen from Salem, O., to Uniontown, Pa. They gave their names as Peter Cardine of Cardale, Pa., and Merle Robert Carothers, of Beaver Falls, Pa., both picked up in Uniontown, Pa., by state police.

HOPEFUL—Cornered, this courageous threesome refuses to give up their hope of escape from the clutches of the Nazis in the suspenseful new action film, "Bomber's Moon." Stated Monday for the Lyric theatre, the film stars Annabella and George Montgomery (right) while Kent Taylor accompanies them in their flight for freedom.

PLAYING WITH FIRE—In more ways than one, Warner Baxter and Lynn Merrick go on a murder-hunt in a thrilling mystery, "Crime Doctor's Strangest Case," now playing at the Quilna theatre, adapted from the famous Max Marcin radio program. And what's more, they get their man. As a result of this flaming lamp in Baxter's hands, however, movie audiences are treated to as thrilling a fire scene as they ever have witnessed.

"BOMBER'S MOON" THRILLING STORY AT LYRIC THEATRE

Coming events cast their shadows. That is the firm belief of handsome character actor Kent Taylor. Throughout the early years of his life Kent was slapped down so many times in his business career that he gave up keeping track of his checkered experiences. But, to a fellow who has suffered so many hardships in real life, those encountered in his successful motion picture career are a push-over.

In his present assignment in the suspense-filled hit, "Bomber's Moon," which opens at the Lyric theatre Monday, Kent plays a featured role opposite George Montgomery and Annabella. The fast pace of the thrilling picture calls upon Kent for some very difficult bits of acting.

He is knocked down and pummeled by Montgomery, who incidentally was a professional boxer and ranch hand before becoming a star. On two occasions the script calls for him to jump into icy waters along with the stars of the film. "Hey Rookie" is the co-feature.

FIREMEN RESCUE BOSS
STEWARDSON FURNACE, Pa., Aug. 5—(UP)—Boef took a decided drop recently when Bossy, a cow owned by Mrs. C. S. Bechtel, fell 40 feet from a well platform into chilly waters below, as it crossed the boards enroute to its barnyard home. Although the water covered its body, Bossy was able to keep her head up until local firemen rescued her. The following day she was "up and around as usual."

"Sweating Out" A German Barrage In Normandy

By TOM WOLF
ON THE NORMANDY FRONT, Aug. 5—This is a near stone-graphic report of the conversation of 12 men pinned down for two hours by a vicious artillery barrage as the Germans have yet located in Normandy.

The men are part of a company of combat engineers who were sent in to a recently captured town only a few hours after the first infantry units. When the barrage started they dived behind a partially wrecked building. All are sweating despite the ground dampness. Conversation comes in gulps followed by long, uneasy silences which are usually ended by profanity after an especially heavy barrage.

"This, then, is what men talk about at the front when their lives hang on the trajectory of the next shell:

"Why the hell isn't the Air Corps up there today bombing those gun positions?"

"The fliers probably are lapping up mud and bitter in London and saying, 'Oh, those poor boys in the infantry!' I'll stand any one of them a drink any place any time."

"My old man was in the trenches in the last war."

"The Colonel says we'll be here for Christmas."

Look For Major
"Who said this town's been taken?"

"The Major."

"Well, this is the last time they'll get me up here just because the Major says the place is taken. There's only one way to tell if a place is taken. When you see the Major in the town, then it's taken."

"Where's our artillery we hear so much about? Why aren't they giving those hun guns a working over?"

"After this war is over I'm going to have a six months' drunk."

"Only six months?"

"Man, back where I live there was a fellow who used to go fishing every Fourth of July. He was afraid of firecrackers. Now I know how he feels. I'll never shoot another cracker in all my life."

"You volunteered, Jim. You should be the last to kick."

"Yeah, you volunteered. For what?"

"Well, if we weren't fighting them over here, we'd have to be fighting them over there sooner or later."

"Wonder if this building will take it?"

"Well, it's been okay all morning. They probably have an observer right on the roof here. No one's been up there to look."

"I hope they have. They wouldn't try to hit him."

"Before we left England they got to us to make out our wills. Had to say who we wanted to collect our insurance. Now I know why."

"Boy, if I ever get back to my little old town I'll never leave its city limits again as long as I live."

"Yes, some one ought to tell

When the occupation forces moved into Italy, they found that the cost of living was sky-high, because practically all necessities were controlled by the Black Market. The MP's, of the office of the Provost Marshal General, went to work, and put the profiteers out of business. Sgt. Arthur Laurents is the author of this series, which is produced by Jerry Devine. Music on the show is furnished by the ASF orchestra, conducted by Major Harry Salter.

HOME FRONT FORECAST

City mouse and country mouse can get along together when it means they'll both get a bigger and better piece of cheese.

That's one reason the school lunch program is a good place for farm and city women to begin working together. It means better food for the children of both, according to Mrs. Raymond Sayre, National Director, Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau Federation. Mrs. Sayre led a panel discussion on "America's Schools" at a recent Rural-Urban Women's Conference in Washington.

A school lunch for every child was a post-war aim expressed in the discussion. Good school legislation, and a tax system designed to give rural schools a more equal footing were recommended projects for rural and urban women's groups.

If prices on such regular bill-of-fare items as a cup of coffee, ham sandwich, bacon and eggs, roast beef, hamburger, or combination salad get out of hand in your district your regional office of Price Administration has the authority to set up definite fixed prices for these items in various types of restaurants.

This plan is being tried in the west. So far other sections are getting along with prices frozen for individual restaurants at the level of April 1943.

Germany is reported to be producing over five billion gallons of gasoline and light oils per year from coal.

WAR INCENTIVE

PITTSBURGH, Mass., Aug. 5 (UP)—After a furious game of golf in which he lost eight balls, one of them on a clean drive down the middle of the fairway, a Marine veteran of Guadalcanal knew what he was fighting for. "There's no question in my mind now," said Cpl. John Hallinger. "I'm fighting so this course can be put back in condition."

VETS WILL BE TRAVEL WISE

DURHAM, N. H., Aug. 5—(UP)—A postwar study committee at the University of New Hampshire has discovered that "returning servicemen will be richer in travel and experience than their professors and cannot be handled in the same way as boys and girls fresh from the family fridae."
