

Sigma Brings Delinquency Question In Picture Form

Debatable is the word delinquency and many children have good grounds for wondering whether it is they who are delinquent or their parents. Now it is displayed in picture form in "Are These Our Parents" opening Saturday at the Sigma theatre. This movie gets the basic idea across and does not waste time in doing so.

At last it is coming here, the picture all have been waiting for, "Going My Way" starring Bing Crosby. Bing sings the songs which so far beat anything Bing has ever produced with his vocal chords. "Going My Way" opens Friday at the Ohio theatre.

Simone Simon surely can play innocent parts but she can become irritated to the point of bursting after so long a time. You will note this in her latest picture "Johnny Doesn't Live Here Any More" now playing at the Quilna theatre, when she becomes entangled in a mesh which had all Washington laughing.

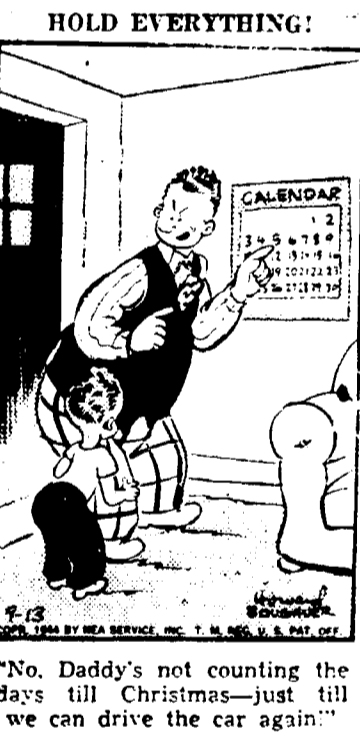

Topping all dramatic feats of the screen, "The Story of Dr. Wassell" now at the State theatre is the greatest of any movies so far produced. A Navy surgeon who puts the lives of his men before his own was awarded nothing less than the presidential citation.

Playing her last at the Lyric theatre is the sweetheart on skates, Sonja Henie. In "Wintertime" Miss Henie surpasses any ice skating feats she had accomplished in the past.

OHIO
Bing Crosby's been on the Road to Morocco, Road to Zanzibar and Road to Singapore — but now he's on the road to fame in the captivating motion picture, "Going My Way," arriving Friday at the Ohio theatre.

Of course, Crosby long ago was included in the charmed circle of the famous, but more for his velvety vocalizing than anything else. From here on, the "groaner" isn't sitting back to let others take laurels in the acting profession — he's put his own oar in the Hollywood water and has come up with the finest catch of the year. He plays Father "Chuck" O'Malley, and the way he plays him elicits rave notices from reviewers.

There's nothing lacking in "Going My Way," critics say, for the heart-warming story is acted out by one of the most competent casts and has Leo McCarey at the reins to handle direction. Bing's brother-priests are Barry Fitzgerald, the kindly, temperate whimsical Father Fitzgibbon and Frank McHugh, genial and enthusiastic in his role as Father O'Dowd. Then, too, Rise Stevens appears throughout the film as a famous opera singer (which she is) rendering

"No, Daddy's not counting the days till Christmas—just till we can drive the car again!"

the "Habanera" aria from "Carmen" while the Robert Mitchell boys' choir captivates audiences, according to reports when the group joins Bing in several selections.

These are times that try men's souls and women's hearts. There is much to consider before anyone can decide what is right and what is wrong. The problem that is presented in "Men of the Sea," coming to the Lyric theatre Thursday is one that many men have had to solve.

George Folley, married and the father of an infant son, is an experienced wireless operator. He knows that his country is in dire need of his services, but he also knows that his mother has a great fear of the sea. His older brother was drowned and all of his grandparents lost their lives at sea, for the Folley's have followed the mast since the days of Drake. For the answer to George's problems see this engrossing story of mother love versus love of country.

ADVENTISTS PROTEST ON "WORLD CALENDAR"

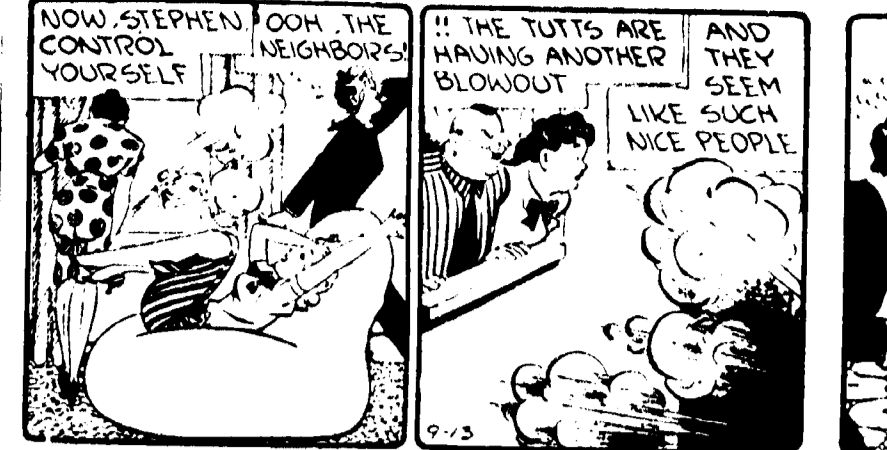

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(UP)—Deploping the proposed adoption of a "world calendar" as a blow at the command of God for a fixed day of rest, the Seventh Day Adventists have protested to the World Calendar-assn against the "sinister dangers" of such a change.

The Adventists called upon their entire ministry and editorial staffs to "warn our people by sermons, radio addresses, by articles, and by specially prepared publications" against the attempt to break the "indissoluble relationship of religion and the week."

The world calendar is divided into equal parts of three months—13 weeks or 91 days—with the New Year always beginning on Sunday, Jan. 1.

The 265th day at the end of every year, designated December W, is a "world holiday"—"the friendly handclasp of time," acclaims the world calendar will save "countless hours, confusion and money."

With the Ole Professor, Kay Kyser, still on his sabbatical, Phil Harris takes the "College of Musical Knowledge" on a visit to the Amphibious Training Command, at Coronado, Calif., Wednesday, at 9 p. m., EST, over Station WEAF. The King Sisters, Sully Mason, Ish Kabibble, Baritone Don Leslie and Harris will furnish the vocals and comedy.

A bride is left waiting at the church by a groom who is busy at the time becoming another kind of vital statistic, and "The Norths Meet a Bride on a Binge," on "Mr. and Mrs. North" comedy-mystery broadcast on Wednesday, at 7 p. m., EST over Station WEAF. The subsequent discovery of the groom's body provides him with the perfect excuse for failing to attend his nuptials, it does little to ease the bride's mind, and the Norths are called upon to investigate an unusual crime. The newly-arrived soldier from the States finds Alaska a land of friendly welcome. There as here he finds Coca-Cola. In Ketchikan, to say Hate a "Coke" means Pal, we're right glad you're here, just as it does in your own home.
