

Max Lerner Heads Speaking List On Radio Town Meeting

"Is the Political Action Committee an asset or a liability to Democracy?" J. Raymond Walsh, research director for the PAC and Max Lerner, author and chief editorial writer for the New York publication, P. M. maintains that it is an asset, in a discussion on "America's Town Meeting of the Air," in a broadcast from Denver, on Thursday at 7:30 p. m., over Station WJZ. Two prominent speakers, not yet announced, will maintain that the PAC is a liability to the American way of life. George V. Denny, Jr., founder of "Town Meeting," presides as moderator.

FUND LETTERS ARE DEFENDED BY HORSTMAN

COLUMBUS, Sept. 21—(UP)—State Democratic Chairman Albert A. Horstman charged today that Ohio Republican leaders told "only a half truth" in the published inferences that he illegally solicited campaign funds from employees of the War Manpower Commission and the U. E. Employment Service.

"They failed to say that with each letter of solicitation there was a card enclosed giving the rules as to whom may contribute and how and where contributions to political parties are permissible," Horstman said in a formal release issued by Democratic headquarters.

Meanwhile, Republican leaders admitted it was doubtful that Horstman had violated the Hatch act by sending the letters but reiterated that they will investigate.
