Cooperation Is Sound Basis For Economy

By ROBERT W. BABSON

The other morning I was riding on a Boston and Worcester bus. At Newton we were going up a rather steep hill and I noticed our driver waded for the car behind to come ahead. When the car passed us it was a Greyhound bus, a competitor of ours. This thought occurred to me as to how different that was to the old cutthroat competition days. You and I can remember, and not so many years ago, that in any town or city, those who were engaged in the same line of business were natural economic enemies.

Even while this condition existed it was generally recognized that the very foundation of society itself is cooperation. The village, the city, that state, the nation are all the result of cooperation. The very term the United States of America itself signifies the cooperative basis of our national existence.

Back in tribal days the right to hold was the right of might. Tribes were natural enemies. Not until men learned to cooperate did estates arise. Not until capital learned to cooperate with capital did the factory system arise. Not until capital and labor learned to cooperate will unemployment be licked. Not until the nations of the world learn to cooperate with one another will anything like world peace arise.

If any good is to come out of World War II it should be to hasten the age of cooperation. The Allies have said and are cooperating in a very practical and efficient manner in winning the war. They will win it. All that we ask is the same intensive cooperation on part of the nations after the war to maintain peace and prevent future wars. The future of the world lies in the domain of cooperation—the surest test of advancing civilization.

CHICAGO SUN TO APPEAL CUT IN PAPER SUPPLY

CHICAGO, Nov. 11 — (AP) — Clem J. Randau, business manager of The Chicago Sun, announced today an appeal would be filed in Washington Monday on a War Production Board order directing the newspaper to reduce its newsprint usage by $86.69 tons by the end of September, 1945.

He said the appeal, and an application for a stay of execution of the order pending an appeal hearing, would be filed with the WPB chief compliance commissioner.

The Sun said it had protested to the WPB over phrasing in the order alleging that the newspaper "has hampered and impeded the war effort" and had received a telegraphic reply from Morris S. Verner, director of WPB's compliance board, saying the phrasing was "the customary language used in such orders" and "should not be construed as discrimination against the Sun."
