CHARLES F. LAMB
Grand Master in 1923

FRANK JENKS
Grand Master in 1929

(See Henry Noll's Column, Page 6)

Madison lodge, No. 5, will observe its 100th birthday anniversary with a program open to all Master Masons at the Masonic temple auditorium Jan. 10.

Invitations have been sent to the officers of the Wisconsin Grand Lodge and to all Masonic bodies in the state.

For several months committees have been at work, preparing for the program which will begin at 8 p. m., and be preceded by a half hour organ recital by Arthur L. Steen and Wallace R. Naset, lodge organists.

A dinner for grand lodge officers and for the officers of the three Madison blue lodges will precede the meeting in the temple dining room. After the program a social gathering for all Masons will be held in the dining room.

Among past grand masters of Wisconsin in attendance will be Charles F. Lamb and Frank Jenks, both of Madison. Lamb is the oldest member of Madison lodge, No. 5. He was made a Master Mason Aug. 1, 1881, when the order held its meetings in the Young block on W. Main st. In 1909 the lodge honored him with the election of worshipful master.

Presents Silver Plate
In 1923 Lamb, a veteran Madison attorney, was elected grand master of the Wisconsin grand lodge. While holding this office he presented a silver plate in memory of Benjamin T. Kavanaugh, Wisconsin's first grandmaster, at the cornerstone laying for the George Washington memorial at Alexandria, Va. From 1925 to 1940 Lamb served as a trustee of the grand lodge.

Three members of the Jenks family have served as head of the Wisconsin grand lodge. The late Judge Aldro Jenks of Dodgeville, Frank's father, first held the office. In 1923 Frank was elected worshipful master of Madison lodge, No. 5, and in 1929 he became grand master. Several years ago, Frank's brother, Maxwell Jenks of Abbotstown, Wis., who is now grand lecturer, was elevated by the grand lodge to grand master.

Most Grand Masters
Madison lodge has the distinction of having had more grand masters than any other Masonic lodge in the state. Other Madisonians who held the office besides Lamb and Jenks were the late Charles E. Whelan, John H. Corso, David H. Wright, Sr., Alvin T. Webb, and C. E. Shafter.

As its number implies, Madison lodge is the fifth oldest in the state. Mineral Point, No. 1, Melrose, Platteville, No. 2, and Milwaukee, now Kilbourn, No. 3, at Milwaukee already existed when the Wisconsin grand lodge was organized in the territorial capitol here in 1843. They operated under the jurisdiction of other grand lodges prior to the formation of the Wisconsin body. Potasi lodge was the fourth lodge to come under the jurisdiction of the Wisconsin grand lodge.

Madison lodge now ranks as one of the largest of the 306 Masonic bodies in the state.

An early historian recorded that when Madison lodge received its charter Jan. 10, 1845, the "village was sparsely settled, the streets were covered with deep, black unctious mud, and cows were pastured on them."

The Wisconsin Express, now The State Journal, also reported that bears and pole cats were plentiful, often showing themselves within a half mile of the capitol.

Jerry R. Coulter and Oscar Mueller, co-chairmen of the general anniversary committee, announced Saturday that the program will include a short address by Herbert L. Mount, Milwaukee, present Wisconsin grand lodge grand master and that Jenks will give the response. There will also be presented a Masonic skit, prepared by John G. Macfarlane, and the Zor Shrine Chanters will sing a half hour concert.

All grand lodge officers, past grand masters and the worshipful masters of Madison lodge, Hiram, No. 50, and Commonwealth, No. 325, will be introduced. The masters of the three lodges are Ralph S. Butler, Willard C. Thompson, and Marshall T. Melby, respectively. Presentation of the colors will also be a feature.

Members of the committee besides Coulter and Mueller are Butler and Gordon A. Huseby, worshipful master of the past year, ex-officio; Louis W. Bridgman, George F. Cramer, William B. Johnson, Charles F. Lamb, Henry Lutz, Alfred E. Kundert, Macfarlane, Clyde E. Pyne, Arthur W. Quam, David C. Roberts, Irving D. Steffen, and Clyde N. Wilson.

Butler will preside during the program.

Library Branch Called Success

Records Indicate Use First Year

City Librarian Helen E. Farr reported Saturday that the Monroe st. branch of the Madison Free library, which will be one year old Jan. 4, has had a successful year. It is known to the library staff members as the "Guinea Pig."

Miss Farr said that during last January the average number of books borrowed each day the library was open was 65 and by December the average had reached 107 per day. Records also show, she stated, that the branch has brought library service to people who were not receiving it from the central building.

Of the 382 adults on the list of borrowers, 325 were not currently holders of library cards when they came to the branch. Since June 15, when children service was initiated, 182 secured cards. Only 10 of these had been registered borrowers prior to that date. Although the branch has been giving out a steady stream of books to neighborhood children, the libraries at Dudgeon, Nakoma, and Randall schools have issued more books than they did before the branch opened, Miss Farr said.

The branch now owns about 400 adult books supplemented by about 600 borrowed from the main library and by the branch circulating collection of 50 to 75 current titles which shift every three months.

Children's books total about 450. Mrs. John Butterwick is the librarian at the new branch.

Union Speakers Discuss Relationships Among Arts

Relationships among painting, the dance, photography, music, dramatics, and other arts will be discussed at a "Round Table of the Arts" in the Wisconsin Union theater at 8 p. m. Thursday. The program will be sponsored by the Madison Art assn. and the Wisconsin Union board. It will be open to the public.

Among the speakers will be: Margaret D'Houbler, University of Wisconsin physical education department, "Rhythmic Design in Dance"; Melvin Schneider, music educator, "Music and Life"; Roland Stebbins, university art education department, "Rhythmic Design in Painting"; Lillian Garsett, university related arts department, "Photography as an Art"; L. Irene Buck, art supervisor, Madison public schools, "Art Training for All Children"; Ruth F. Danielson, university related arts department, "Art and the Home"; Sarah Gridley Ross, president, Madison Art assn., "Rhythmic Design in Living."

26 Artists Show Work at Union

Paintings by 26 contemporary American artists will go on show at the Memorial Union's main gallery today. The show, from the Associated American Artists galleries includes the oils "Winter Landscape" by Madison's Marshall Glasier and "Pink Roses" by Frederick Taubs, who will appear on the Wisconsin campus as guest instructor in the department of art education next summer.

The show features the work of America's best new painters and includes such artists as Doris Lee, who was a judge for the 11th annual Wisconsin Salon of Art, George Grosz, Aaron Bohrod, Irwin Hoffman, Arbit Blatas, Henry Botkin, and R. Munsell.

GLASIER

All the paintings placed on exhibition are for sale, it was disclosed by Joyce Elmer, chairman of the Union gallery committee which is sponsoring the show.

An exhibition of serigraphs (silk screen printing) will go on show in the theater gallery of the Union today in conjunction with the Associated American Artists' paintings. Serigraphs are pictures printed in color on paper by the artist in his own studio. As in wood engraving, a wood block is used (such as demonstrated in the Louis Schanker show which has just closed), in serigraphy screen made of specially woven silk is used. Serigraphs are original, hand-signed works of art in the same graphic arts field as etching or woodcuts.

Porgy and Bess' Orders Swamp Union Theaters
Mail order sales for "Porgy and Bess" at the Wisconsin Union theater Jan. 15, 16, and 17 were reported Saturday to be coming in heavy batches and a possible mail order sell-out was predicted. Mail orders will be accepted until Jan. 6 and, if any tickets remain, the boxoffice sale will open Jan. 8.

George Gershwin's nationwide musical success, coming here from its fourth engagement on Broadway, was a best seller and a dramatic stage hit as "Porgy" before Gershwin made it into a folk opera, with lyrics by Ira Gershwin and DuBose Heyward.

Hoover-Balbac
Miss Doris L. Hoover, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. R. N. Hoover, West Chicago, Ill., and Carson C. Balbac, son of Mr. and Mrs. Olin Balbac, Gratiot, were married recently in West Chicago by Bishop J. Ralph Magee. The bride's father assisted.

Miss Phyllis Hoover attended her sister as maid of honor. Another sister, Miss Ruth Hoover, was a bridesmaid with the Misses Eleanor Dannewitz and Edna Mae Messer. Gwendolyn Sykes was flower girl and Stewart J. Perkins, ring bearer. Page boys were Ted Balbac and James McNair.

John Balbac attended his brother as best man. Ushers were William Hoover, Burl Lethlean, Lyle Lethlean, and Charles Roberts.

After a large reception, Mr. and Mrs. Balbac left on a short trip. The bride is a graduate of the Northern Illinois State Teachers' college at DeKalb. The bridegroom attended the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture. After March 1, the couple will be at home on a farm near Apple River, Ill.

'Rested' Ernie Pyle Appears Satisfied with 'GI' Movie

HOLLYWOOD — (U.P.) — Columnist Ernie Pyle, enroute to the western Pacific after a three-months respite from war coverage, seemed well-satisfied Saturday with the movie version of his best-seller "Here Is Your War."
"I really couldn't tell much about it," he said, after looking over preliminary "takes" of the film, "The Story of G.I. Joe." "It was all in pieces, but it looked like they were trying to do it right."

Pyle, who came home from the fighting in France for a rest, said he hadn't had two hours to himself since he got back and actually wasn't rested at all.

Most of his time, he admitted, was taken by "a thousand and one details," and a heavy correspondence with G.I. friends overseas.

He read the complete manuscript of his latest manuscript, "Brave Men," for the first time a few days ago, he said, and noted in passing that 15 of the men mentioned in it have been killed.

"Fifteen that I've heard about, that is."
