Thursday At Lima's State

Melody and mystery will run along hand in hand at the State theatre Thursday when the two pictures "Ministry of Fear" and "The Singing Sheriff" will open.

The former is just what one might expect it to be, a thriller with a plot that thickens until the picture comes to an end. The latter picture, "The Singing Sheriff" is another hit musical starring Bob Crosby and his orchestra.

If you want to know what is the last word in moving pictures then it's the picture "Meet Me in St. Louis" that's for you. With Judy Garland and Margaret O'Brien heading the cast, what more could be asked? Filmed in dazzling technicolor, the picture takes you back to the days when St. Louis was leading the world. The film can now be seen at the Ohio

Another of the sparkling technicolor films just out of Hollywood is the movie "Tonight and Every Night" starring Rita Hayworth and featuring Janet Blair and Lee Bowman. All will remember when the Germans first began their allout blitz of England's greatest city-London. This picture, now current at the Quilna theatre, depicts the courage of the show people at that time who helped to keep up everyone's courage.

Forty years ago the amusement world was left breathless by the first full-length movie, "The Great Train Robbery," an epic of ingenuity and thrills which last all of 10 minutes. That great forerunner of today's two and three-hour pictures is now on view at the Sigma theatre with a dozen or more thrills playing under the title of "The Good Old Days." To those who can't remember back that far, now is the time to do some reviewing; and to those who can, here's a good chance to get in a few good laughs.
